are engaged in a public debate about the uncertain future of their city.

Bombay, India's commercial center and the only city in South Asia that has a Manhattap-style skyline, is lively and cosmopolitan, with an air of wealth, glamour and sophistication that is rare in this part of the world.

But as a recent seminar of civic leaders concluded in a report called "Whither Bombay." there is also a

"Whither Bombay," there is also a "crisis in Bombay, deepening each day," as its fetid slums spread, and its mass transport and other public services grow ever more difficult.

The problems of Bombay are typical

The problems of Hombay are typical of those facing cities of the third world all the way from Lagos to Manila, as backward and primarily rural countries make the leap into Alth-century, urban life. In Bombay, as elsewhere, migrants from the farms who came seeking a batter life handle teaches by the thouse better life huddle together by the thou-sands in squalid shacks beside elegant high-rise buxury apartments.

Need for a Fresh Approach'

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi recently described the situation here this way: "The city is in danger of being over-taken by its problems. Slums, conges-tion, traffic bottlenecks, pollution and intolerable strains on civic services have become characteristic. These are the consequences of unplanned growth. There is urgent need for a fresh ap-

Bombay, which used to be just a land as a wedding present. It is now a long, narrowing peninsula, like Manhattan and the Bronx. But with seven million people, Bombay is twice as densely populated as New York City.

And more and more of the people, both the rich and the poor, want to crowd together into the southern quarter of the peningula. the peninsula—the part corresponding to lower Manhattan and midtown.

One result of the overcrowding is inflation; annual office rents in the most desirable area, on land reclaimed from the sea only 10 or 20 years ago, have climbed to $10 a square foot, and a two-bedroom apartment on the 20th floor can cost $50,000, a substantial amount in a city where three-fourths of the families get along on less than $75 a month.

Another result is congestion. In the third-world pattern, it is Bombay's poor, not its rich, who live in the faraway suburbs, and many of them spend two hours or more a day clinging to the sides of the packed, maroon-andyellow commuter trains that converge

"We simply must reduce this concentration and spread out the centers where people want to live and work," said Charles M. Correa, an energetic architect who is a prime mover in the campaign to create "New Bombay," a planned city 12 miles away, on the other side of the busy Bombay harbor. We must create a poly-centered sysTechnology, "It's the only solution the urban problem in the development world."

Alabaster pink neo-classics carved by a master,

Emilio Pucci

The ancient Romans celebrated the beauty of the human form with statues sculpted in gleaming alabaster.
And now Italian designer Emilio
Pucci does the same. It must be in his blood, this reverence for pure lines and gracious curves.

Except that this modern-day artist doesn't carve in cold stone. He uses soft, warm, shimmering satin to glorify a lovely body. And lace. Lots and lots of rich, creamy lace, placed here to flatter a willowy waist and there to point up a pretty ankle or a delicate wrist.

We have to say
"Grazie, Pucci"
for all this lavish designer luxury. And
we'll certainly add
"Thanks a bunch, Formfit Rogers"

for stitching up these Romanesque romantics with another modern-day touch. Everything here (even the signature lace) is pure, 100% nylon, which means they're not afraid of soap and water, but they'll never go near an ironing board.

Our long gown in the large sketch has a deep lace midriff and lacedipped dolman sleeves. This one buttons in back for a smooth silhouette. Small and medium sizes, 40.00.

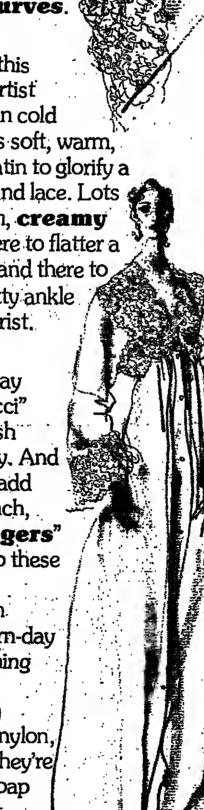

The scoop-necked gown has a (new) handkerchief hem. Petite, small and medium, 30.00. And this v-necked coat wears a lace-frothed bodice. Also p.s.m. 45.00.

What you can't see here: lots of little designer details like tiny, covered buttons. What you will see: one delighted lady when she opens her Altman gift box and finds you've made this an Alabaster

Contrary to expectations, the conservative Social Democratic Center did not make a major advance, getting 16.63 persent of the votes compared with 15.96 cent of the vote, compared with 15.96 percent in April.

A major casualty of the election was the revolutionary Popular Unity Movement, which received only 2.42 percent of the vote. The movement's presidential casdidate, Maj. Otelo Saraiva de Carval-ho, finished second last June with 16.52 percent, taking votes from the Communists as well as the Socialists.

Prime Minister Soares expressed satisfaction with the election results today and asserted that they demonstrated that the Socialists were the only party with "oational support." His assertion is essentially correct but it does not make any assert the Socialist Government" task of easier the Socialist Government's task of dealing with Communist strongholds in the South and relatively conservative fief-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13-The State Department has demanded an explanation from Yugoslavia of accusations by a sen-ior Belgrade official against former Presi dent Richard M. Nixon, a department spokesman said today.

The demand was made to Ambassador Dimce Belovski, who was called into the Department oo Friday and told of United States concern about an accusation that Mr. Nixon had stirred separatist senti-ments among Croatians during a visit to Zagreb, the Croatian capital, in 1970.

The United States Information Agency's exhibition in Sokolniki Park attracted 270,000 visitors despite freezing weather, five-hour waiting lines and two bomb scares. People were still waiting to get asside at the final closing.

The exhibition was heavy on American history, with descriptions of Revolutionary and 19th-century America. It also sought to appeal to Soviet interest in current American life. Particularly popular displays included a panoramic movie tour of the United States and a bank of stereo headphones that played modern jazz and rock music. The most novel element was the distributioo of Russian-language copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights to all visitors. The documents came in a plastic bag—a valued commodity in Moscow in itself—along with lapel pins and a record of American jazz and alexacian ways. REFEATER DRYGIN

TWA is now operating at the highest level of on-time performance in its history. So are our competitors.

And that's no coincidence. In the beginning of this year TWA made a major issue out of on-time performance. It shook up the airline industry. It shook it up so much everybody tried to do better. And they did.

Surely no one benefited from this competition more than the flying public, especially business flyers to whom on-time performance is so important.

Hughes Cousins Say Utah Man Forged Mormon Will; Service Station Operator Would Share in the Estate

By WALLACE TURNER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13-A lawyer for Howard Hughes's cousins today accused a 31-year-old Utah service station operator of being involved in the inrgery of a purported will of the late hillionaire industrialist.

Wisconsin's 11 electors vnted to abolish

"It's been our belief for months that Mr. Dummar was and had to be involved in the forgery of this will," Mr. Dilworth told Judge Neil Lake in opposing a motion for suspension of proceedings in which the validity of the will is being contested. Mr. Dilworth said that he had been told by the authorities in Nevada that an examination of the will and envelopes and notes found with it by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents had disclosed Mr. Dummar's fingerprint nn the outer envelope.

Dummar Said to Deny Print

Mr. Dummar could not be reached for comment. His lawyer, Roger S. Dutson of Ogden, said that he had talked with Mr. Dummar about the possibility of the fingerprint being there because Mr. Dum-mar may have handled the envelope. "He denied it and still denies it." Mr. Dutson said of his client. "It couldn't be on there by him.' But considering the high stakes in-volved in the will contest, Mr. Dutson-said, "It is always within the realm of possibility" that someone somehow managed to create Mr. Dummar's print on the envelope.

Mr. Hughes's relatives stand to inherit part of the estate if no valid will is found. They believe that all of the purported wills turned up so far are fakes.

The eovelope on which the print was said to be found was the outer one of two that contained the handwritten document when it was found in the late afternffice in the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints.

The purported will directed that Mr. Hughes's wealth he spread among four colleges, the Mnrman church, the Boy Scouts nf America, Hughes employees, two for-mer wives and Mr. Dummar. When reporters contacted him, Mr. Dummar said that he had a possible explanation of why he was named in the will. The reason, he said, was that on an occasion when he was driving near Tonapah, Nev., he found a disheveled man with a hleeding ear along the road-

Mr. Dummar said that he gave the man a ride into Las Vegas and was told that the man was Howard Hughes. Mr. Dutson said, "Howard Hughes awarded this be-cause the act of kindness by Mr. Dummar may have saved Mr. Hughes's life." However, Mr. Hughes's employees, who stayed with him in eight-hour shifts

Mr. Dietrich, when the will overnight he had remembered being in was found, said: "I can only hope its genuine." He would collect about 2 percent of the estate under the terms of the purported will.

The document was offered for probate in Las Vegas, as instructed in papers-found with it, and also in Los Angeles. Harold Rhoden, a Los Angeles lawyer, has pushed for its acceptance, with Mr.

Dietrich's backing.

According to published accounts, Seymour Lazar, a Los Angeles lawyer and investor, has committed $250,000 to support the attempt to validate the will. Mr. azar was quoted in New West magazine two months ago as saying he expected to share in the lawyers' fees if the will is validated through his efforts. He could not be reached for comment today.

Pay your bills by phone and collect 54% on your balance in this amazing account.

TELLERPHONE turns your phone into a bank teller. What a development! A whole new way to pay bills, brought to you by The Greater New York Savings Bank.

TELLERPHONE is a day of deposit to day of withdrawal account that pays 5 1/8 interest... but it has an amazing feature. You can use the money in this account to pay department stores, utilities, credit cards, the mortgage and most bills that come up regularly.

No check to write...no envelope to stuff...

no stamp to lick. Imagine the convenience. When you want to pay some bills, you just call the TELLERPHONE number, and tell us who to pay and how much. You no longer have to write a check for these payments. You save postage every time. And you can call TELLERPHONE seven days a week: Monday to Friday 8AM to 8PM, Saturday and Sunday 8AM to 5PM.

You receive a complete and itemized statement every month. We even do the paperwork and send you a monthly statement describing all the individual payments you made. And for all these advantages, the charge is only 10¢ each time you call, as long as you maintain a balance of $300 in your

TELLERPHONE Account. You can make as many payments per call as you wish. And the local call itself counts as one message unit. And there's more! With a TELLERPHONE Account you automatically qualify for a free checking account at The Greater, which you can use to pay other occasional bills that arise. Thereafter, once you make your deposit, in person or by mail, you can do your banking by phone if you wish. Pay regular bills by TELLERPHONE...and, when you need to write some checks, use your TELLERPHONE Account to transfer funds into your checking

In my humble estimation, this has ordinary checking beat by a mile.

Moneywise, you are way ahead. Assume an individual opens a TELLERPHONE Account for $500 and makes a deposit of $500 on the 1st and 15th of each month. Say he makes five payments totaling $395 on the 5th of each month and four more payments totaling $230 on the 20th of each month. At the end of one year, said individual would have a very pretty financial picture: namely, a balance of $5,155.64 in his TELLERPHONE Account. He would have earned $158.04 in interest, and paid only $2.40 for 24 calls at 10¢ each. And remember, he would have saved postage, a whopping $14.04.

So, if you are impressed by figures like these, open a Greater TELLERPHONE Account today. You can do it in person at any of our 16 branches, or mail the coupon. And if you have any questions, call our TELLERPHONE number, 212-499-7000.

Areyou stillsmoking?

In the years since the criticism against smoking first appeared many people have given up cigarettes. But many more people haven't

And that's who we'd like to talk to. That even larger group of people who are still smoking today.

If you're still a smoker, you've probably heard the charges leveled against 'tar' and nicotine. You may have become concerned. And chances are you even tried to do something about it. Like trying several of those empty-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes.

If you're like a lot of other smokers, you probably went right back to your old brand, and concluded that a good-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette has never been invented.

Well, if that's the case, you haven't tried Vantage.

Vantage cuts down substantially on the 'tar' and nicotine you may have become concerned about. Without cutting out that satisfying tobacco flavor you've come to appreciate.

Now Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can smoke. But it may well be the lowest you'll enjoy.

To put it simply, Vantage still tastes like a cigarette.

So, if you still smoke, but would like to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine, Vantage is one cigarette you should seriously consider.

Savings Account you never lose interest in.

How could you?

You get to use your savings whenever you want, and you aren't penalized a single penny of the high savings bank dividends your money keeps earning.

That's what a Union Dime working savings account is all about. And this is how it works.

The Day-of-Deposit to Dayof-Withdrawal Account

Start this high dividend/quick access account and we'll keep your interest up every day.

The minute you make a deposit that money starts to make more money...54% computed from each day of deposit to day of withdrawal. compounded daily, and credited quarterly, provided you keep $1 on balance to the end of the quarter.

This is the highest dividend rate the law allows...51/4% with an annual yield up to 5.47% if you leave principal and dividends on deposit for a full year.

The Grace-Day Account

A Grace-Day Account comes complete with a bonus. If you deposit money during the first 10 calendar days of the month, that deposit will earn dividends from the first of the month. Any deposits made after the 10th will earn dividends from the day of deposit.

You may make withdrawals during the last three business days of the quarter without losing dividends. Dividends are compounded daily and credited quarterly on balances of $1 or more that remain on deposit to the end of the quarter.

The "No Bankbook" Statement Account

Here's another great Union Dime working savings account-only we do all the work. You don't even have a bankbook to carry. Instead we'll send you a statement every month a transaction takes place. And if no transactions occur, we'll keep you up to date every three months.

Your $100 opening deposit entitles you to our full 51/2% dividend rate from day of deposit to day of withdrawal and a special Union Dime

Account Card that gives you banking privileges at any Union Dime office.

Free Checking, too

If all this isn't enough to arouse your interest, we've got even more. Free Checking privileges with any savings account balance of at least

So while you check into our high savings dividends, why not save on our free checking?

And check our Protected Checking, too...it's a pre-approved personal loan that's yours as fast as you can write your check.

Convenient Branches

Where is all this happening?

At convenient Union Dime branches throughout Manhattan and the suburban areas. Chances are you work or live close enough to stop by today.

We're open early, we stay open late and our neighborhood branches are all open on Saturday.

So come in and talk to us...we think we can interest you in something

The Feminine Eye

TALKING WOMAN. by Shand Alexander.
271 pages. Delacorte. $8.95.

"One major difference between men and women in my generation," writes Shana Alexander, "is that women have to be more people than men, or to play more roles. . Some of mine are Herr Doktor Alexander (folksy wisdom); Miz Shana (gossip, as in Miz Ronn); Pollyanna; Funny Lady (wryly self-critical); Ms. Alexander; Cassandra; Sob Sister; Kid Sister; the Wife of Bath (very difficult), and a few others." "Interested readers can readily find and identify them here," she adds, referring to "Talking Womao," a collection of her essays, interviews and assorted pieces, as well as her post-mortem comments as well as her post-mortem comments on them. Most of these pieces have been taken from Life magazine and Newsweek, where she was a regular columnist, and a few are from McCall's, which she edited for a short period.

Miss Alexander is one of those rare writers who can be witty without ever being cruel; who can be deeply personal without making you feel you opened the wroog door, profound without sounding portentous; emotional with-oot sentimentality. She is a sensible, well-balanced womao raised to the nth well-balanced womao raised to the nth power. She has a stumning sense of discretion. I also think that, in some way which I am rather wary of trying to define, she is a very feminine writer. This remark rests on the assumption that there are, as she says, significant differences between the men and women of her generation, and she has made a virtue of them.

Learning to Use T.

The pieces in "Talking Woman" range from an interview with Marlon Brando that took seven years to write, to the birth of a baby elephant in Portland, Ore. They vary in length from a few paragraphs to saveral thousand words: And while some of them were written early in the 1960's, these are not dated because Miss Alexander usually reaches beyond the topical. She tells us that she majored in aothropology in college, and it seems to me that her journalism, like all the hest of this genre, is anthropological. Who are these creatures with the bizarre customs and what is their mythology that makes them behave as they do? Speaking of her column, "The Ferminine Eye," Miss Alexander observes that, "...at the age of 39, I learned to use a new word. I learned to write T for the first time. . . " Then she adds: "The distance from third person to first is the longest throw in journalism."

Everybody with a typewriter seems to have writtee about Judy Garland. (It is not true: It only feels that way.) But Miss Alexander has this to say about her: "She is part bloebird, part phoenix." Watching her perform, "One gets the ferling that Miss Garlaod may be about to cut a vein." The singer is qooted as saying that sometimes the ordeal of performing made her feel nauseated or dizzy. "You are never so alone as when you are ill on stage. The most nightmarish feeling in the world is to suddenly feel like throwing up in front of 4,000 people." I think that everyone who writes for a deadline, including Miss Alexander, is familiar with this illness.

I particularly liked the author's description of "the stricken smile" on the face of the Presidential candidate's wife. "There's a lot of Ireoe Dunne in the look: a gallant lift of chin, a mute, appealing desire to please." Then, if the candidate makes it, his wife is propelled into the awesome ambiguity of the "First Ladyship [which] has no rules . . It is as if we hand her hammer and nails, gold leaf and a hit of hunting, and say, 'Here. Build the thing yourself."

"The Fice Art of Marital Fighting" is

yourself."
"The Fioe Art of Marital Fighting" is my favorite piece in "Talking Woman." It is a fairly long article about George R. Bach, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist who has "professionally analyzed 23,000 marital fights." His aim, Miss Alexander writes, is "to teach cooples to have more, shorter, more constructive fights." What dismays the doctor is "the native cowardice and ahysmal crudity" of most such fights. in which crudity" of most such fights, in which both persons generally "hit below the belt." Everybody, says Dr. Bach, is al-ways to some degree angry and we must learn to "program" the resultant aggression, for "real intimacy demands that there he fighting." These best that there be fighting." When both fighters "win," the reward is "an increased area of relatedness."

Stages of Intimacy

Dr. Bach's various stages of intimacy have the ring of inevitability. My favorites are "The Courtship Stage" in which couples "sit on eggs" and indulge in "date talk;" "The Honeymoon," which is like the morning after, when his hand and wife first realize what husband and wife first realize what marriage is; and "Freedom—Or—The Void," that time when the children are grown, the passion spent, and each partner wonders what holds them together besides habit.

The anthor's seven-year interview with Marlon Brando is a near defeat, through no fault of her own, because as she puts it, if Mr. Brando were to talk about acting, he would he able to do it only in a way that would amount to psychological, or at least creative, suicide. Not that there aren't fine lines in the piece, such as Mr. Brando's saying that to act, "You have to upset yourself . . And there comes a time in one's life when you don't want to do it any more."

Here's the end of the author's interview with James Cagney: "We shook hands in the doorway in the dusk, and suddenly he tapped out an intricate step, a tiny ruffle and flourish of feet on polished floor. The Getavasia, he said. . . . Before you go off you do a little something extra, so they'll remember you." Miss Alexander did not need lesson: In her own field, she is as much a master, or mistress, of the Getavasia as Mr. Cagney was.

Building an Administration

The story is told that in November 1960, Presidentelect Kennedy held a long session with close aides in which they went over lists of names for various jobs and considered the pro's and con's-mostly con's, it seemed-of appointing particular persons. Mr. Kennedy concluded the meeting and, shaking his head wearily, said, 'I thought at least this part of it would be fun.'

President-elect Carter can appreciate that story. Today he is scheduled to announce the selection of a Secretary of the Treasury and two or three other major appointments. This will culminate dozens of hours of patient listening and inquiring, several face-to-face sessions with leading contenders for Cabinet office, and innumerable telephone calls to political allies and leaders in different walks of life all over the country.

Yet today's appointments will intensify rather than relieve the pressures. Those who seek high officesand many of them are well qutalified and deserve serious consideration—are likely to redouble their efforts and those of their friends as the number of unfilled offices dwindles. Similarly, pressure groups of every kind desiring recognition can be expected to press even harder.

This Administration-building task is a uniquely American enterprise. In most democracies, the elements of a political coalition have already found expression in the national parliament and a new chief executive routinely selects his senior colleagues from that body. It is the very formlessness and openness of the American way of doing things that make a President-elect's task at once exciting and daunting.

Mr. Carter can best cope with the conflicting pressures of the transition period by invoking a comment attributed to a Confederate officer in the Civil War: 'Elevate them guns a little lower." Try as he does, he cannot hope to satisfy every claimant and every faction nor can he in so short a time construct an Administration that meets all his ideals. The best he can do is demonstrate to the nation that he has sought diverse advice and weighed competing claims conscientiously. Those two criterie he has already satisfied. The country is aware that he is no frivolous man casually promoting personal cronies or political hacks.

The best circumstance he can hope for is a period of quiet after Jan. 20. If there are no breathtaking crises in the opening weeks, he and his associates can get used to working together and the Administration begin to cohere.

At least one or two major appointees are sure to perform poorly and will need replacement. Moreover, every Administration after two or three years in office needs an infusion of fresh talent and energy. Many of those who are not selected for office now can be called upon at that time. In short, Mr. Carter should guard against perfectionism. Administration-building is as much a continuous process of renewal as it is a once-everyfour years ordeal.

Taxes, Revenue...

With the important goal of trying to revive New York's declining economy, and thus to restore its shrinking fiscal base, Mayor Beame's Temporary Commission on City Finances has called for sweeping cuts in taxes on local manufacturers.

In doing so, the commission sharply challenges the view of many urban economists that the flight of industry from this and other cities is caused predominantly hy economic, social and technological developments that are hevond the reach of local action. As one of them has put it: "To race for manufacturing jobs in this era . . . is to swim against the current."

Bucking this formidable tide of economic opinion, the commission contends in an 85-page study that punitive levies are a major cause of the loss of more than 500,000 manufacturing jobs here in the last 25 years. The study suggests that, under certain circumstances, firms would have to pay twice New York as in White Plains.

The commission argues that recommended cuts in the business income tax, the sales tax and the commercial rent occupancy tax, plus other tax benefits would, in the words of Chairman Owen McGivern, 'dramatically increase tomorrow's employment and revenues."

That hopeful forecast is open to question. The commission's assertion that its proposed tax reductions will not only stem the industrial hemorrhage but generate a larga inflow of new jobs is hased on a two-year-old study by the city's budget bureau which is said to show a close correlation between past tax increases—notably a change that took place in 1966-and the loss of industrial jobs. But the budget hureau study is only sketchily described and the commission's own charts do not reveal any notable correlation between taxes and manu-

It does certainly seem a reasonable assumption that New York's excessively high rate of taxation has been a factor, perhaps even the deciding factor, in impelling firms to quit the city in recent years. It does not necessarily follow that lowering taxes will carry equal weight in inducing other firms to settle or expand here in the face of other urban difficulties.

Nevertheless, the threatened loss of an additional 150,000 manufacturing jobs over the next fiva years, if current trends continue, is reason enough for the city to consider lowering its taxes to levels that will he competitive with other areas, as the commission recommends. Even if no new jobs were generated, the city would gain aconomically, fiscally and socially from any action that could help stabilize its important manufacturing sector, which still accounts for 16.1 percent of all local employment.

The most serious objection to the commission's recommendations is that, even under the most optimistic assumptions, they could cause major revenue losses over the first few years. The commission doesn't spell out precisely what the cost of each suggested cutback would he, as it should have done, but the study does concede a possible $90 million loss over the next two years. Our own calculations, based on some figures cited in the report in another context, suggest that the initial cost could be substantially higher.

In the long run, which is the commission's chief concern, such losses would almost certainly be offset by revenues from new industry, or at least by revenues that would have vanished if nothing were done to stop the outflow of firms and payrolls. In the meantime, however, Mayor Beame and his fiscal aides bave to contend with the realities of an austerity budget which leaves no room for tax cuts, no matter how desirable, unless alternative sources of revenue can also be found. This is the next urgent order of business to which the Temporary Commission and others need to turn their attention.

...and Rhetoric

Restoration of confidence in New York's fiscal is an indispensable ingredient in any effort to save the city. Excessive gloom can be almost as damaging to the on-going rescue mission as actual fiscal setbacks.

Shoring up confidence, however, is not to be confused with such pie-in-the-sky promises as Mayor Beame's fatuous pledge that the city's real-estate tax rate will remain frozen for five years. Or his statement that 'we've turned the corner" in coping with the fiscal crisis. When viewed against the hard facts of current and future budgets, such proclamations have the ring not of confidence-inspiring assurances but of a political confidence game.

Preventing a further rise in real-estate taxes is of course a highly desirable goal. Yet any promise that the lid can be kept on these levies, which in the past have been subject to virtually annual increases, must be viewed as a political rather than a fiscal statement. The political nature of that "pledge" is driven home by the fact that such a five-year plan would cover practically all of the next mayoral term. Can the Mayor commit a potential successor to an off-the-cuff promise on a matter of such economic importance? Mr. Beame seems to be hinting, without great subtlety, that New Yorkers may be able to accomplish miraculous feats hy re-electing him, thus leaving us with an altogether discountable campaign promise rather than a responsible

The Mayor's observation that the city has "turned the corner" sounds like a candidate's jockeying for position. Under normal circumstances, such a maneuver might be considered the acceptable routine in a field expected to be crowded with contestants. Unfortunately, harsh reality argues against such politics-as-usual.

Mr. Beame has a right to take pride in the progress made in moving New York ahead on the hard roed toward fiscal credibility and solvency. But the jolt suffered as a result of a court order to repay the municipal notes which had been deferred under the now invalid terms of the moratorium is only the latest reminder that there is still a long way from emergency rescue to a permanent closing of the gap and ultimate fiscal health. That journey is not likely to be aided by the Mayor's panglossian rhetoric.

Standoff in Portugal

Prime Minister Mário Soares has claimed a "Socialist victory" in Portugal's local elections; and his party did lead the field comfortably for the fourth straight ballot test since the overthrow of authoritarian rule in 1974. But the Socialists dipped slightly under their showing in parliamentary elections of last April, while the Communists rebounded into third place, thus remaining a force capable of harassing a minority Government in a country buffeted by inflation and bigh unemployment.

Given Portugal's grim economic situation and the austerity measures the Government has been forced to impose, it was a considerable accomplishment for the Socialists to poll 33 percent of the votes. The question Mr. Soares must now confront once again is whether it makes sense to continue trying to govern in such trying times with the assured support only of his own party. In the local balloting, the Social Democrats-formerly known as the Popular Democrats-duplicated their 24

percent poll of last April, easily holding second place by a wide margin over the Communists. The Social Democrats are a slightly left-of-center reform party that shares most of the policy objectives of the Socialists. Together, the two parties command the support of 58 percent of the electorate and a robust majority in

The task of huilding a durable democratic system after 50 years of the corporate state would be formidable in any circumstances. Mr. Soares must cope simultaneously with the effects of decades of economic stagnation, more than two years of drift and confusion after the 1974 military takeover, and the problems of depression and inflation that afflict most Western countries. Voter distillusionment with the new democracy was reflected in the local elections by a record 35 percent abstention.

A coalition of Socialists and Social Democrats would seem to offer the best possible prospect for political stability, for economic recovery and development, and for reinforcing Portugal's fledgling democracy against attack from either end of the spectrum.

World Hunger: The Forgotten Crisis

To the Editor.
It has been disappointing, though not altogether surprising, to note the almost complete lack of attention to the plight of the world's poor m the media treatment of the Presidential transition and the speculations about new people and new policies. In the international affairs area the emphasis has been on détente, armaments, Europe and the Middle East - almost always in terms of national security, narrowly conceived in geopolitical

Nevertheless, there is still on the horizon, and growing, a cloud a good deal bigger than a man's hand, which represents the unsatisfied human needs of the nearly three-fourths of humanity who live in what are often called the third and fourth worlds-and particularly those half-billion people whom the U.N.-sponsored World Food Conference of November 1974 found to be mainourished or facing starvation.

Just last week concerned leaders in the food and nutrition field, at a conference in Philadelphia sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences, confirmed almost unanimously the persistence of the world food crisis which hurst unexpectedly into the medie in 1974 but has largely faded from public view in recent months. Despite back-to-back good harvests, these half-billion hungry people are no better off than they were when their situation was the subject of unanimous resolutions at the 1974 conference.

in some measure this stems from the failure of governments to act vigorously and in concert on a widely perceived problem, and in part it is due to the complexity of the issue and its inextricable and multiple linkage with all the problems of world development economic, social and political. But in additional measure the disappearance of the hunger issue from the media

The case has been made many times and need not be repeated here—that the three-fourths of the works's people to whom we pay little attention, except sporadically, are very probably more important for the future of this country than the minority of the affluent whom we concentrate on. My point here is simply to express the hope that, in formulating the new Administration's policies and in making its appointments, greater emphasis will be placed on the basic human needs of the poor majority of mankind - and that the media, particularly the press, will raise these questions in interviews and publicize them.

Egypt's President Sadat, in a private but official answer on Feb. 15, 1971, to a memorandum by the U.N.'s special envoy, Gunnar Jarring, pledged Egypt "to enter into a peace agreement with Israel" that would "respect the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of Israel, as well as its right to live in peace within secure and recognized borders" in return for an Israeli commitment-which was being sought by Jarring-to withdraw to, the pre-June 1967 borders under international guarantees. This wording constitutes a proposal to accept the de jure, not just de facto, existence of Israel. The proposal was made publicly by Sadat during the same week in a Newsweek interview end has been reiterated by him many times since.

Words of a 'Moderate'

To the Editor: Your Nov. 10 editorial "Consensus

Arahs." I wonder whether you noticed the full-page ad placed by the Syrian Ministry of Information in that same issue of The Times. In that ad the following statement is attributed to President Hafez al-Assad: 'The Arabs are one nation, and Israel is a foreign body in the Arab world. This is a priori and does not-require any proof." This statement, of course, is utterly incompatible with the common view that Syria and Assad are "moderate," a view to which your editorial seems mistakenly to subscribe. There is nothing moderate about Assad's position. On the contrary, the passage quoted expresses perfectly the crux of the Middle East problem: the total rejection by the Arabs of the right of a sovereign Jewish state to exist in the Middle East.

Any policy which rewards this kind of "moderation" is ultimately bound to fail. One can only hope that the Administration of President-elect Carter will make it clear that the Arabs must show concretely that their basic ideology is changed before Israel is called on to make further territorial concessions. # 'Go Civilian or Go Broke'

By Seymour Melman

There is no viable economic prospect for the United States with continued inflation-unemployment stagnation. Only conversion of our finite technology and capital resnurces from military to civilian priorities can reverse this decay.

The conversion idea is absent from mainstream economics, which ignores stagnation-producing features of a military economy. Its money-valued products add nothing to consumption or to production. The Pentagon and allied agencies get 75 percent of the Government's research-and-development money, and more capital each year than is left, after taxes, to all corporations. Unlike civilian firms that traditionally minimize profits, firms in the Peotagon's economy maximize all costs and the offsetting subsidies. These translate into rising prices.

The United States military economy is an inflation machine. From top to bottom, cost and price increases are encouraged and rewarded; these practices are carried into and infect civilian parts of firms serving the Pentagon, and other enterprises. The classic processes of offsetting cost increases by mechanization and other efficiency-promoting measures are neglected. Higher costs are added to prices.

As cost-maximizing infects the machinary-producing industries, new industrial equipment becomes less economical. But as old machinery is retained, productivity growth stagnates: By 1973, United States industry operated the world's oldest stock of machine tools; labor productivity growth in manufacturing fell from the historic 3 percent annual rate to 2.1 percent (1965-1970) and 1.8 percent (1970-1975), the lowest rate of any Western industrial economy.

Meanwhile, the prices of all imports rose as the cost of wars and foreign bases degraded the value of the dollar. Unintended: An oogoing war economy drives up costs, debilitates productivity and produces inflation.

The military economy produces unemployment. As cost-maximizing raised United States prices, many firms became noncompetitive. American firms invested abroad and imported instead of producing bere. One result is unemployment in many industries.

Responding to more rapid civilian economic growth outside the United States, American firms invested $47 billion abroad during the 1960's. In manufacturing alone, this created 3.3 million new jobs abroad.

Some Americans seek reassurance

Some Americans seek reassurance in the direct employment effects of Pentagon spending. Actually, military expenditure employs fewer people directly than civilian expenditure, causing a loss of over 800,000 jobs in the United States. All told, not fewer than 3.5 million to 4.5 million jobs are lost to Americans owing to the more direct effects of a war economy. Including the indirect effects of fects more than doubles these numbers.

Economic conversion means transferring manpower, capital and technology from the military to civilian economy. This process has several key can retr

Indissiry John Recause of possession recommendative resistance of possession resistance of posse parts: capital transferred from the overblown military Establishment to new civilian activities; these become new markets for military or other firms and new jobs for military employees; obligatory advance planning at every base and factory serving the military to design civilian work options; local responsibility for conversion planning by tripartite committees of management, employees and local community representatives.

Planning for conversion needs a parallel blueprint for income guarantees to every employee serving the Peotagon: say, 90 percent of salary for two years. Backup for individuals can include family-relocation and jobretraining allowances, administered through existing oetworks of state employment offices; this would cushion those whose work places could not be converted, for whatever reason. A national economic conversion commission, modestly staffed, would be needed to coordinate new civilian capital outlays by governments and firms. No centralized bureaucracy would be required.

An economic-conversioo mechanism prepares an alternative to a military economy and alleviates fears for jobs and income that now bind managers, unions, military employees. Coogressmen and others to the Pentagon budget as a sole source of support. The same process offers the whole economy an exit from the twin bind of unemployment plus inflation.

The options for Jimmy Carter are: Go civilian or go broke.

No Biz Like Sex Biz

By Russell Baker

delil our light

Most of the problems created by New York City's booming sex industry result from the city's reluctance to treat it as an industry. Everybody concerned wants to deal with it as a problem in constitutinnal law or moral philosophy. This high-toned approach leads to some very elegant arguments and some splendid emotional speeches, some of them entertaining some edifying and all veoless.

taining, some edifying and all useless. This sterile approach has now led the city to propose regulations which will forbid the industry to concentrate in one community and force it to spread its shops at considerable distance from each other. What can City Hall be thinking with? The answer, obviously, is: lawyers.

A recent Supreme Court ruling seems to authorize cities to push sex sbops far apart without falling afoul of the Constitution's safeguards for commercial enterprise. It mey be constitutional, but that hardly seems reason for doing it. If we consider the problem as industrial, there is, in fact, every reason to do the opposite.

As an industry, sex poses many of the problems common to relatively messy industrial operations. It attracts a high volume of traffic. It produces unattractive wastes that lower the tone of the host community. As an industry with a high industrial-accident rate, it burdens the community with safety police, ambulance attendants, screeching sirens and so forth. In short, it is the kind of industry

In short, it is the kind of industry that lowers real-estate values and turns neighborboods with high property-tax yields into warehouse districts. The last thing any sensible city government—should encourage is spreading it all over town. No one wants a reodering plant moved into his nelghborbood, and no city government in its right mind would dream of breaking up a cooccotration of rendering plants and scattering them bither and you simply because the Constitution says you can do it.

The sensible approach is to concentrate the sex industry io its own district, as the garment and the financial industries bave done. Unfortunately, however, the sex industry is no more welcome in most communities than a rendering plant would be. It may be, as some feminists argue, that femina Americana bas a constitutional right to vend her bones wherever she pleases. It may be, as civil libertarians iosist, that sex vendors have a constitutional right to proclaim the excelleoces of their goods all over the public ways. Right or wrong, these arguments do not change the fact that most communities do not bail the arrival of the sex industry with the

welcome wagon. Both the industry and the city must realize why this is. For one thing, the street salesmen block the sidewalks, create a high volume of trash and constitute a public nuisanca. For another, the industry's customers tend to be raffish, sometimes intoxicated and occasionally criminal. Even within the industry, alas, the personnel have a high record of felonious and even violent activity.

On the whole and despite its powerful constitutional claims to respectability, this is not an industry whose neighborhood arrival is going to be celebrated at a Chamber of Commerce banquet in the Kiwanis ball. It has not been welcomed in the Times Square area by the theater industry, which feels its territory is being ruined. Nor off Eighth Avenue, whose residents would probably prefer a rendering plant. Nor on the Upper East Side where recent dispersal promises to send one of the city's fancier shopping areas down the road to Times Square.

It is possible to sympathize with the statesmen of the sex industry in their cruek search for a community that will not treat them like typhoid carriers. What the city should be doing is not planning to scatter them through duzens of neighborhoods which will despise them, but finding them a community of their own. There are two obvious possibilities.

The first is the Wall Street area. A district now almost entirely abandoned at night, it could be infused with round-the-clock life by encouraging the sex industry to move in late in the day as the brokers move out. When the financiers depart, Wall Street has no oeighborbood left to be resentful, and the nocturnal nature of mercantile sex makes it the ideal industry to locate in an area now unused more than balf the day.

The other solution is to locate the entire industry in one of the giant agglutinations of empty building space which now depress the city tax rolls. West 42d Street has a set of completely empty, unrentable apartment towers near the river which could easily absorb every trader in sexual goods from Eighth Avenue to the East River, with whole floors left over for clients of the most extravagant taste.

A combination of both the Wall Street and single-structure approach might be provided in the World Trade Center, which has acres of floor space waiting. Everything could be kept way up in the air, miles from everything else. The World Sex Center, we could call it, and point it out to the children as we skimmed the city, and in that day, with the problem sensibly solved at last, they might even ask, "What is sex?"

Giving Mr. Scrooge A Chance

Quick before the annual imposition of universal good will toward all creatures, I rush to seize this last opportunity to offer the following selective compendium of people and practices toward whom or which I bear unimitigated ill will:

Business firms which order me to copy 25-digit account numbers on my check so that the company asking for my money will be able to give me proper credit. Writing checks is painful enough without the requirement of doing aomebody else's bookkeeping.

I am angered by notices in taxicabs asking passengers to respect the driver's accumulation of allergies and other idiosyncrasies whereas the driver ignores my allergy to unrequested, eardrum-shattering music. I am similarly affronted by all those who desecrate public places with the blare of portable radios.

of portable radios.

I reject the charge that in lobbying for legislation to prohibit such noise pollution I am in violation of anybody's freedom of speech. Misguided civil libertarians who would make it appear that I am advocating gag rule would surely object to the use of public address systems in public squares as has long been the practice in totalitarian countries. The right not to be forced to listen nught to be protected against violations from any quarter. private as well as governmental.

I despair of sales people who stop waiting oo me in order to confer with their colleagues about matters unrelated to my transaction. Ditto stores that locate their gift-wrapping counters on distant floors where no remotely givable items are sold.

I loathe those ghostwriters who produce the prose recited by all the nation's airline stewardesses, such as "The captain has [emphasis thems] illuminated [it used to be "hurned on"] the no-smoking sign. Please extinguish all smoking materials [emphasis mine]." I still cherish the memory of once hearing a stewardess break out of the verbal bondage to announce, amid spontaneous applause, that this was happily berlast flight because she was about to quit and get married.

I shudder when reporters push microphones or noteboks in the faces of disaster victims and ask: "How does it feel to be destitute and dying?" I never cease being appalled by editors who justify such callous nonsense by invoking "the people's right to know."

I get slightly ill on hearing specialinterest groups, in response to news reports about their crooked dealings, ask, "Why don't they ever publish good news?" and then adding that, anyway, every barrel has "a few rotten apples."

I would like to withdraw accreditation from the restaurant school that trains beedwalters in the standard practice of filling the least desirable tables first, apparently on the principle of "First come, worst served."
Ditto hotel clerks who insist on assigning the room next to the elevator or the noisy leamachine before releasing other locations.

Finally, I would like to sic Ralph

Nader on all commercial enterprises which, because they use computerized billing, ignore any and all communications addressed to them along with payments. Example: The New York relephone Company charged me with a call to an unknown party in an unknown town in California last July, when the entire family was on vacation and no calls were made from my address. Since oo human hand or mind touches written communications concerning billing errors, I am, reconciled to deducting $6.97, accompanied with appropriate but unread explanation, from every monthly bill until the end of my days or the removal of our telephones, whichever comes first.

The list is by no means complete. It is, as it were, "only the tip of the iceberg"—another phrase I could live without

Museum for Pershing Planned in Missouri

LACLEDE, Mo., Dec. 13 (AP)—A $3 million museum honoring General of the Armies John J. Pershing, World War I hero, will be built in this six-star general, will be built in this north-central Missouri community where he was born.

Plans were announced yesterday by the Pershing Park Memorial Association, a non-profit group, following a study on interest and potential financial support of the project.

Organizers said they hoped to raise $50,000 by next November through donations and various fund drives. The Smithsonian Institution and the Armed Services Historial Division have promised to help stock the museum.

General Pershing, comamnder of the United States forces in World War 1, was born near here in 1860. He taught school in Prairie Mound before embarking on a military career that included Indian battles, the Spanish-American War and border skirmishes with Pancho Villa, Mexican revolutionary. He died in 1948 and is buried in Arling-

New York Schools Urged to Cut Rents For Community Use

An ad boc committee composed of four New York City Councilmen and two New York State Assemblymen urged the City Board of Education yesterday to let community groups and nonprofit youth organizatioos rent space in public-school buildings at sharply reduced fees.

The committee members, who could not get support for a hearing from their legislative bodies, held their own hearing in the Health Department auditorium at 125 Worth Street. At the hearing, 20 speakers deplored the skyrocketing cost of renting school space.

Councilman Henry Stern, Liberal of Manhattan, who presided, said that the high cost of searching for school space had left schools "dark anti deserted after 3 P.M." and had added to the problem nf youth crimes.

In addition she reported severe pressures on families and neighborhoods and the loss of jobs and population to locales with better living conditions.

Hugh McLareo, executive director of the New York City Office of School Buildlngs, said the increased fees were justi-fied and required under union contracts. He asserted that what the Board of Education charged to rent space was the actual cost to itself.

Missouri Church of Scientology

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 13 (UPI) The Missouri Church of Scientology today lost its $2.5 million libel suit against The St. Louis Post-Dispatch and two of its reporters. .. The church sued the Pulitizer Publishing Company and two writers, James Adams and Elaine Viets, for a series of five articles appearing March 3-7, 1974, ealing with the sect.

Judge James Finch Jr. wrote in the unanimous opinion: "Some portions relate to [the church] corporation, but substantial portioos are devoted to the international organization of Sciential and the former of Sciential and the former with t of Scientology and its founder, L. Ron Hubbard, rather than to plaintiff corpo-ration [the Missouri church]. The articles detail complaints and criticism by exmembers, but point out that for every dissenter there are numerous devotees who are enthusiastic. In our judgment, the articles do not constitute a malicious defamation of plaintiff corporation and as to it are not libelous per se."

Yesterday Mr. Goldin warned once more that the city should avoid this approach—an approach Mr. Kummerfeld. has acknowledged is under consideration or any other approach that would have the effect of raising the real-estate tax.

Debt-Service Costs Projected According to Mr. Goldin's office, the latest calculation for the next fiscal year —which begins July 1—is for the city to be generating $1.2 billion in debt service for bonds issued before last July 1, plus $200 million more for bonds issued during the year ending next June 30.

A total of $90 million to $120 million more in debt-service costs are likely to be added to next year's budget to pay for whatever settlement is worked out on the moratrolum notes, Mr. Goldin's to prove it was "the need for personal gain . . . profit . . . aggrandizement" that motivated Mr. Hochberg to offer a job and future political support to his prospective opponent, Charles Rosen.

They have also become the symbols of what is developing as a major effort to reform and reconstruct the state's system of administering justice to very young persons accused of having committed serious crimes. The reform would have its major impact in New York City, where Family Court is most overcrowded.

Traditional Rules Broken By Crime Committee Head

The case of Ronald Timmons first became public knowledge last Oct. 27. State Senator Ralph J. Marino, chairman of the state'a Select Committee on Crime, angrily broke the traditional rules keeping Family Court records secret to complain that although Mr. Timmons had a long record of juvenile delinquency, much of it in crimes against the elderly, he had largely been unpunished by the juvenile justice system and had not heen helped by any rehabilitative effort worthy of that

The latest failure cited hy Senator Marino, a Republican of Syosset, L.L., was that Mr. Timmons, although accused with another of rohhing and severely heating an 82-year-old woman in her Bronx apartment, had been released in $500 hail, a trust the suspect promptly violated by jumping hail and fleeing to Baltimore. He was arrested there Nov. 17, returned to New York, and ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination at Bellevue Hospital.

Because of the Timmons case and rising concern generally about crimes by the young, there appears to he conidersbie support among lawmakers for legislation Secator Marino plans to in-

His proposals would transfer serious juvenile offenders to the criminal court system and give them a trial hy jury. In addition, they would also require the fingerprinting of all juveniles accused of serious crimes.

The New York Times sought to find out hy interviewing those who knew the twins and their parents and hy reviewing the family's problems as they emerged over the years in various confidential records.

their problems our offered the brothers meaningful rehabilitation.

As a consequence, their potential victims received almost no protection from their antisocial activities. Records show that during periods when the twins were granted 30 adjournments and left at large on a variety of serious charges against them as juveniles, they were arrested 14 more times on still new charges.

Almost all of the serious allegations against them as children went without adjudication in a hopelessly overcrowded Family Court and their records there remain a disorganized, incomplete jumble. eveo to the most patient researchers.

The impression the twins have made on their old neighborhood in the South Bronz is clearer. To many of their former neighbors at 1420 Washington Aveoue, part of the Claremont housing project, the twins are called "godfathers" of the so-called "push-in" or "crib" crimes-muggings in which old people are accosted at their own front doors and pushed into their apartments, where they not only lose their belongings but suffer physical abuse as well. The term "crib" is used because assaulting an aged person is lik-ened to taking candy from a baby.

Reputation So Formidable Many Talked Reluctantly

The Timmons hrothers are certainly not the only young people arrested on suspicion of having committed such crimes. A total of 146 arrests have been made in the last few years among the Timmonses and two other families at 1420 Washington Avenue because of alleged crimes against the elderly. But the Timmons reputation is so formidahle that people in the South Bronx spoke about the twins reluctantly and only with great fear and asked that their names not be used.

"I'll tell you this: if they ever set foot in my place. I'll shoot them dead," said one of their neighbors. He keeps a handgun in his apartment, as well as a basehall hat and an iron rod that he regards as weapons, "You better believe it, I won't hesitate," he said. How much of the Timmons story is

Marion, a county seat with a popula-tion of around 7,500, is a commercial center for timber, tohacco and cotton and it manufactures yarn, cottonseed oil, veneer, clothing, lumber, boxes, cement blocks and bricks. Whites slightly outnumber blacks.

The Percentage of Whites Increasea as Blacks Relocate

Since 1950, the white percentage of the population has increased as blacks have left to move north. Io the 1950 census, there were 3,362 blacks and 3,468 whites; by 1970, blacks had fallen to 3,275 and whites had increased to

Marion was and is substantially below the oational median figures for income, education and employment and perhaps this is what prompted the Timmonses to leave. Whatever their bopes were, they went unrealized in New York. By the late 1950's, they were having their first children hut they were having serious arguments, too, with Mr. Timmons alternately moving out of and returning to whatever apart-ment they happened to be living in.

She worked as a domestic for a woman in Queens, he as a shipping clerk and their family problems mounted. Finally, in 1959, their incompatibility spilled into Family Court, which ordered Mr. Timmons to make contributions of $15 to $20 a week to his wife in child support. She complained to the court that he had beaten her. Shortly to work, she received public assistance for about a year.

According to records obtained by The Times and interviews with people who knew her, Mrs. Timmons grew more and more imhappy in New York and at one point drank heavily. For a while, she had hopes of marrying a man named Arthur Irvin, if and when she ever got a divorce. The relationship with Mr. irvin did not last, however.

By the mid-1960's, when her marriage was apparently beyond redemption, she was described by a neighbor as "quite excitable." Social workers who began to investigate her growing problems with her children onted that she was "uncooperative and antagonistic."

When the Twins Were 8, Mother Sought PINS Status

The twins were born in New York City on June 26, 1957. During their formative years, their parents were engaged in a great deal of turmoil. Its effect on them cannot be determined, hut they emerged as problems in 1965. They were then 8 years old and their mother hrought a petition in Family Court to have them declared as PINS, or persons in need of supervision. Also included in that petition was the twins' younger hrother, Barry, then about 6, who was later to develop some of the problems manifested by his brothers.

The Family Court Act defines PINS as any youngster under 18 "who is a habitual truent or who is incorrigible, ungovernable or habitually disobedient and beyond the lawful control of parent or other lawful authority." At that point, Raymond was described in the records as a "habitual runaway."

During the same period, however, Ronald seems to have been less of a problem. His permanent school records in 1964 and 1965 indicate his social behavior as "good" to "fair" and, at the very time he was being brought into Family Court, some of his teachers were noting in his records that he was "good" in written expression, spelling and handwriting.

Sooo after what appears to have been a decisive breakup in 1966, the twins and Barry were all sent to the Wiltwyck School in Esopus, N.Y., a private institution for problem youngsters. The family Court concluded that Mrs. Timmons wasn't able to provide a proper bome.

Ronald Timmons Re-enters The Public School System

The arrangement was somewhat less than successful Mrs. Timmons is recorded as baving threatened a thera-pist, telling him the questions he asked were "none of your husiness." One member of the staff complained in a report that "her negative attitude [is]

viliating therapy."

Mrs. Timmons got the boys out of Wiltwyck late in 1967, telling the court she plaoned to move to Baltimore. There is no evidence a move was actually made and Ronald re-entered the New York public school system, where he received help for a reading problem hut where school records say he liked mathematics and "takes pride in his ability."

In the 1968-69 school year, Ronald-received his highest grade—85—in a course called "family living—industrial

Now the twins hegao to get into trouble with the police, although at first the arrests were for relatively minor offenses—at least compared with what came a few years later. Rooald's first encounter with the police occurred on May 2, 1968, when police say he vandalized a public telephone. He was not arrested. A little over a year later, on May 11, 1969.

his hrother Raymond was reported as behaving in a "disorderly manner," which caused a crowd to gather. He was not arrested, either. In that same year, there were more complaints against both twins, who were 15 years old. Raymond, who had been living hriefly with his father, was accused of throwing a bottle through a store window and, a month later, he and Ronald allegedly tried to steal some small change left as tips on the counter of a luncheonette. A complainant also said they unsuccessfully tried to open a store's cash register. Again, no arrests were made, but Raymond was sent back to live with his mother.

First Arrest Was Charge, In '69, of Purae Snatching

The first time the twins were actually arrested was on Aug. 13, 1969, when they were accused of assault and pursesnatching. It remains unclear as to how the charges were disposed of. The boys were still in the public school system, but their truancy rate was growing and there is little to indicate that schoolwork meant much to either of them at that point.

Throughout all of thia, the records make scant mention of the twins' fa-ther. But it is clear that Mrs. Timmons was having great difficulty in coping with ber role. Family Court records for 1970 say that all her six children "suffer from their mother who heats ... Ronald, causing [him] to run away from home.

Mrs. Timmons was reportedly seen 'to throw Ronald to the ground, to choke and stomp him," and she is also reported to have choked Barry and "banged him against a wall." The final observation of a court report of June 8, 1970, was that Mrs. Timmons appeared "emotionally disturbed." Two

We can show you how to make a million bucks in 20 seconds.

Just tell this machine how much you want at retirement. In seconds, it'll tell you how much to save. (It may be less than you think.)

Almost every bank in the metropolitan area is now offering Individual Retirement Accounts and Keogh Plans.

But The Manhattan Savings Bank owns the remarkable little machine on the right.

Thanks to this machine, we can answer questions about I.R.A. and Keogh accounts in a matter of seconds that some banks might take days to

For example, tell us how much you want at retirement, and we'll tell you to the penny how much you'll have to save each month. Or, tell us how much you can save each month, and we'll tell you exactly how much you'll have at retirement. Or, tell us how much you want to withdraw each quarter after retirement, and we'll project for you how long your nest egg will last.

(Because this machine factors in the interest your money will earn through years of daily compounding, you may be surprised by how little you actually have to deposit to make yourself a bundle.): But even more impor-

The rooms might possibly have accom-modated a few more, but only if the guests looked like celery stalks.

Over on the West Side, in a little restaurant called Great Augt Fanny's, the same night was being marked with a party of another kind, harbara de Portago, who once had lighter interests and is now a serious theater designer, threw a party with her friend, Jason Grant.

By no coincidence, Mr. Grant is the director and the Marquesa de Portago is designing the sets and costumes for "Riviera Rendezvous," a Broadway mu-sical scheduled to open in March. For lagniappe, the Marquesa's mother, Florence Van der Kemp, was here from Versailles with her husband, Gerald, who is curator of all the giory there. The party also honored them.

In 1970 Mr. Reeves was asked to form a special section of the Bureau of Consumer Protection for the county. to investigate mislabeling, adulteration and false labeling in retail food markets. They found multiple violations. "Just about any market you walk into there was a problem of misrepreseotation." Mr. Reeves said.

After three years Mr. Reeves decided to expand his operation to include the more than 15,000 restaurants under his jurisdiction. "In markets the consumer can make a knowledgeable decision on the basis of seeing the product and the label, but in restaurants the con-sumer only bas the menu to go on,"

Dale Reeves, of the Los Angeles Health Services Department, comparing restaurant's food with what is on the menu

he said. "The purchase is made on the basis of a written representation or even a verbal representation and then the consumer is served the product He never sees it before he actually buys it, which is a problem because the restaurants can do a misrepresentation even more so than a market. A pilot program was started in 1973 and early investigations found such misrepresentations as a noted Malibu restaurant serving one type of fish for five different seafood dishes. In a 1974 case, the menu of the Hungry Tiger restaurant chain said, "The fish you eat tonight slept last night in Chesopeake Bay."

Fish Never Slept There

Mr. Reeves's inspection revealed that not only had the fish not slept in Chesapeake Bay but also that they probably bad never even visited there: They had been frozen in Nova Scotia. The Hungry Tiger was fined $4,000 for the menu fraud.

Menu representation, according to Mr. Reeves, 1s a multimillioo-dollar fraud perpetrated on unsuspecting consumers each year. Every caliber of res-taurant, from coffee shops, fast-food and chain restaurants to the exclusive dining establishments whose customers arrive in their chauffeured Rolls-Royces, are tempted to overcharge diners by giving them less than what they think they are getting for their money.

"We never find aoybody serving something better than they advertise on the menu," Mr. Reeves said.

Some of the common ploys are to serve imitation maple syrup for real maple syrup, 70 percent orange juice blend for orange juice, nondairy products for real dairy products such as cream and wbipping cream; frozen fish is served as fresb fish, bakery pies are served as homemade; the chicken in the chicken salad is actually turkey, the veal cutlet is really a veal patty, the breaded shrimp is only 40 percent shrimp and must be labeled an imita-tion product, the advertised 16-ounce steak is only 13 ounces and the prime rib is a lower grade of meat not stamped U.S.D.A. Prime.

Some of the more sopbisticated menu tricks are to say that local potatoes are famous Idaho potatoes; that Virginia baked ham is really a local brand of pork shoulder, that frozen vegetables are garden fresh; the cheese in "roquefort" dressing, which the restaurant often charges extra for, is neither made from sheep's milk nor imported from France; it is a much cheaper domestic Recently Al Penni, a top-rated Culver City restaurant, was charged among other things for selling "kosher" pastrami that wasn't kosher.

There are some bonest restaurants, but Mr. Reeves feels that most restaurants are not going to do anything to rectify their practices until they are caught.

Mr. Reeves walked ioto a leading restaurant in Los Angeles one day on a consumer complaint and saw that his picture, along with a newspaper article about the program were posted on the bulletin board. Even so, his investigation found that the restaurant was in serious violation of the law.

The Classic Stage Company, now in its 10th year, came up with something very special at its home, the Abbey Theater, on East 13th Street, on Sunday night. It was the first professional production of Jean Genet's "The Balcony" in New York for more than a decade. It was last performed in New York by the Circle-in-the-Square.

what is particularly interesting about this production is that it is being given in the new English translation prepared four years ago by Barbara Wright and Terry Hands for the Royal Shakespeare Company. This incorporates scenes from the original with quite a lot of additional material. The language, for example, is far more sexually and scatologically explicit than would have been regarded as permissible when the play was new. This possibly adds something to the shock value—what was shocking 20 years ago, when the play was first produced in London, would not be shocking now. Obscenity, like everything else, has been subject to inflation.

The play is about illusion and reality

not altogether unlikely subject for a French playwright of the period. It involves the existentialism of Jean-Paul Sartre with something of the odd symbolic fantasy of Jean Giradoux (yes, there is even a touch of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" in "The Balcony"), with a sexual savagery that seems to be Mr. Genet's own particular contribution. It is a play that is puzzling, ingenious, intellectually exciting, and, yes, still quite shocking.

It is set in awhorehouse in an un-named country. Outside the whore-house a revolution is flourishing, inside nouse a revolution is nourishing, inside all is sado-masochistic fantasy. The madam of the whorehouse is Irma, far from douce. Irma has built a world of sexual fairy tales where clients can act out a scenario of their own choice assisted by the staff. A man who wants to be a bishop can wear the robes and the mitre and hear the confessions of a beautiful penitent; a would-be judge can have a pretty young thief tortured and sentenced while a man who dreams of being a doomed general can ride to posterity on the back of a frisky, compliant mare. For every sexual fantasy, however bizarre, Irma seems to have a studio. She also has a lover, the chief of police.

while the clients perform their rituals of unreality, the Civil War blazes. The State is threatened. The Queen is killed. So is the Chief Justice, the Archbishop and the Chief of the Army. An envoy from the palace finds out how to recover the situation. It is not the parson playing a role, but the conhow to recover the simulon. It is not the person playing a role, but the con-cept of the role that matters. A real archbishop spends so much of his time and energy becoming an archbishop that when be attains his ambition he is less the Platonic idea of an archbishop than someone who merely fan-tasizes on being an archbishop.

Genet's allegory is a parade of mir-rors. It is a world of savage perceptions and topsy-turvy logic, graveyard humor, gutter imagery, sado-ma-sochistic atmosphere, urchin cynicism and, most importantly, a sort of philosophical poetry. It shocks and it dazzles, it annoys and it intrigues.

The Classic Stage Company has come a long way in 10 years, and it is now an attractive, able and at times even impressive reperiory company. I have never seen it in better shape than with this dark-tened Genet play. The stage this dark-toned Genet play. "Christmas Rappings" is the essential story of the Nativity hawled out by the counterculture, with all of the untidiness that was very likely attendant on the original before history began to tidy things up. Its triumph is in its innocence.

Nothing in the production seems to have anything in common with any other part, but, like a patchwork quilt, it forms a gloriously unified pattern. It combines a celebratory belly dance; an honest workman assembling the beacon star, a young virgin pondering the In-carnation in a pure country twang and a man-in-the-street chorus that sets up

A literary bent generally tends to mean that the playwright has recently swallowed somebody's memoirs, and is in a state of high recollection, pitched toward birdsong. Lines begin "Once, when I was seven . ." or "My grandchild, nearing six . . .," and they are most often read at a rush and a dip (to get them over with), sans punctuation. I have listened to an actress put "Once-when-I-was-seven" all together, as though it were the open-ing ripple of a poem by Alfred an entirely different play. The hero loses every bit of our sympathy. Other characters, including his dead best friend, are also wrenchingly seen in new perspective. It is as if the playwright changed his mind in the middle of creation. The means do oot justify the end. Too many unanswered questions arise, and motivations, particularly of the principals, become unbelievable.

What partly sustains the drama and gives the evening momentum is the production. Oo the small up-stage space, Ronald Roston as di-rector has worked with economy and imagination. This is a large cast of active characters and Mr. Rostoo has managed to keep them all in motion and in conflict with a great ease and naturalness.

There is an authenticity in the performances, as if the actora had visited Ireland along with the playwright. Especially convincing are Christopher Curry as the leader of the radicals. Meg Myles as the widow, Bernard Frawley as the old priest and Larry Bryggman as the failed bero. Mr. Bryggman has some of the bluffness and heartiness of a Jason Robards. The ingenious set—without a turntable, bar converts to basement—is by Ernest Allen Smith. The flavorful "Ballymurphy is however, only one half of a good play.

Instead ahe sand formonces this reviewer heard her less them together in an almost give last summer. Perhans she is anyingly jarring manne, straight taking e firmer hold on her musical for the first two thirds of a talent, the abundance of which has moments.

Noves, not bothering to snatch a breath until after she'd passed "seven." And she was, considering that she was an actress on the stage, doing it exactly wrong. You see, no one in ordinary life ever speaks in such ready-cooked phrases. They say "Once ..." and then they have to stop for e second to remember just when it was. It comes to them. Oh, yes, "When I was seven." At which point wa believe that a human point wa believe that a human mind has been functioning existentially, on the spot, without prior preparation by an elementary school teacher. You can make that particular line a reasonable one, but you've got to be reasonable about it. (I don't know that you can do anything with "My grand-child, nearing six ..." because "nearing six" is a book construc-tion and probably hes nothing to do with the quick give and take

of the stage.)
Stage lines need a little air in them if the performers, rushing on, aren't to leave you gasping and possibly addled. It's usually belp-ful if a noun has an article in froot of it, if the subject comes before the object, if commas aren't used to elide linking words. Audiences can't see commas. Take this one, from a play produced earlier this season about female prisoners season about female prisoners being transported to Australia. "So in comes John Law, truncheons swinging," ooe of the criminals cried spunkily. Except that it sort of came out "So in comes John Law Truncheons, swinging." It wasn't bard, with a little thought, to decipher the true meaning, supplying "with his truncheons" for the stingy, comma-loving playwright. But if you're going to bave to take thought, you're going to to take thought, you're going to miss the next three lines doing it. In which case you might have missed "Floating brothel it may be but its inmates set the tone." Pretty fancy talk for a bunch of low-life deportees, and putting an "A" in front of "floating" wouldn't bave erased its faintly hifelutin syntax. But we'd have got it

Perhaps I'm just slow, I don't think I was slow, though, the night -sometime back-I heard an actor say "Terror . . . disaster . . . war . . . and a lavish overlay of brutishness." To whom did he say it? To no one, since the other performers had been smart enough thus far, to keep to the wings. There be was, poking about at an upstage table, muttering as though to himself, though not in words he would ever use to himself. Ooe does not say "Lavish overlay of hrutishness" to oneself, not out loud. In fact, you can't say "lavish overlay of brutishness" out loud, not at a rate fast enough to keep the curtain from coming down around ooe or two in the morniog; if you can, you're going to be a seosation at the next party you

That particular play, as I remember, had something to do with Stalin, and Stalin was re-ferred to as "a Georgian brute followed by a necklace of non-entities." We'll skip over the alliteration here. At least the syntax is okay, and we can move with it. What really bothers me is that necklace, also in motion. Now I have seen necklaces, on and off stage. I have seen them worn, I have seen them toyed with by everyone from Gertrude Lawrence to Maggie Smith, I bave even seen them ripped loose from the beroine's neck and dashed in passion to the floor. But I have never seen a necklace creep, slither, sidle, wriggle, walk, gallop or in any way tag after the person to whom it belonged. Never mind that it belonged to Stalin; that boy in "Cheri" wore one, too. It's the ambulatory qualities that give one pause, and pause, and pause. A literary beot in the theater often isn't literary at all; it's just lacy, and probably lazy to boot.

You have probably noticed that alliteration is catching.

a little notebook—oh, I lie about it? I keep a yellow sheets buried and I've just cracked a nail trying to wrench a handthem loose having to do language in the theater. That say, whenever I hear somespoken oo stage that un-s my ear and sets me to lering what on earth an actor i possibly do with it short of ing it back to the author. I it down. The practice of jotting down enables me to empty my ad of it and refocus my attenin on the play proper, ofteo a rious mistake.

I'm oot speaking of clichés. I gure clichés are the business of the Copyright Office or perhaps an arbitration committee at the Dramatists Guild. If anyone wants to fight over who used what moldy lioe first, let him: I'm above the fray. I do think this, though. I thick plays that mead to use the some cliche should check with one another in advance and arrange not to open on successive nights. Just this season for instance, a venture called "Best Frieod" opened on a Tuesday, I believe it was, and another called "Poor Murderer" opened on the Wednes-in "Best Friend," a tremulous Barbara Baxley went on and on spilling her life story to a total stranger, then caught herself in midflight to ask "But why am I telling you all this?" The next evening Laureoce Luckinbill (shall we call him Unlucky Laureoce in we call him Unlucky Laureoce in tha circumstances?) had to wind up his private revelations to a doctor with a sharp turn of his head and a curt "I don't know wby I am telling you all this." The trouble with this particular line is, and always has been, that the audieoce knows the answer to it, oo matter how baffled the players may pretend to be. The character on stage is telling somebody all this bacause the author (or his translator, supposing the play to have required translation) is a lunkhead who doesn't know is a lunkhead who doesn't know bow to get the exposition out in any other way. Just dump it oo whoever happens to be standing nearest, and then take refuge in that shy "Why am I?" bit by way of feigniog innocence. The line, of course, has a very loog provenance, and I doubt that anyone could track it back to its primal source now. The trouble with hearing it on Wednesday when you've ing it on Wedoesday wheo you've just heard it on Tuesday is that it makes you think it's still Tuesday, which is a trouble I already have. It doesn't oeed intensifying, that's for sure.

No, my notes mostly have to do with the struggles of actors and actresses to manage verbal constructions given them by authors with a literary bent. A literary bent with a literary bent. A literary bent generally tends to mean that the playwright has recently swallowed somebody's memoirs, aod is io a state of high recollectioo, pitched toward hirdsong. Lines begin "Once, when I was seven ..." or "My grandchild, neariog six ...," and they are most ofteo read at a rush and a dip (to get read at a rush and a dip (to get them over with), sans punctuatioo. I hove listened to an actress put "Once-wben-I-was-seven" all together, as though it were the open-ing ripple of a poem by Alfred

Noyes, not bothering to snatch a breath until after she'd passed "seven." And she was, considering that she was an actress on the that she was an actress on the stage, doing it exactly wrong. You see, no one in ordinary life ever speaks in such ready-cooked phrases. They say "Once . . . . and theo they have to stop for a second to remember just when it was. It comes to them. Oh. yes, "When I was seven." At which point we believe that a human point we believe that a human mind has been functioning exismind has been functioning existentially, oo the spot, without prior preparation by an elementary school teacher. You can make that particular line a reasonable one, but you've got to be reasonable about it. (I don't know that you can do anything with "My grandchild, nearing six" is a book construction and probably has nothing to do with the quick give and take of the stage.) of the stage.) stage times need a little air in them if the performers, rusbing on, aren't to leave you gasping and possibly addled. It's usually helpful if a noun has an article in front of it, if the subject comes before the object, if commas aren't used to elide linking words. Audiences can't see commas. Take this ooe, from a play produced earlier this season about female prisoners being transported to Australia. "So being transported to Australia. "So in comes Joho Law, truncheons swinging," one of the criminals cried spunkily. Except that it sort of came out "So in comes John Law Truncheons, swinging." It wasn't hard, with a little thought, to decipher the true meaning, sup-plying "with his truncheons" for the stingy, comma-loving play-wright But if you're going to have to take thought, you're going to miss the oext three lines doing it. In which case you might have missed "Floating brothel it may be but its iomates set the tooe." Pretty fancy talk for a bunch of low-life deportees, and putting an "A" in froot of "floating" wouldn't have erased its faintly hifalutin syntax. But we'd have got it spicker.

Perhaps I'm just slow. I doo't think I was slow, though, the night
—sometime back—I heard an actor say "Terror . . disaster . . . war . . . and a lavisb overlay of brutishness." To whom did be say it? To no ooe, since the other performers had been smart enough thus far, to keep to the wings. There he was, poking about at an upstage table, muttering as though to himself, though not in words he would ever use to himself. One does not say "Lavish overlay of brutishness" to oneself, not out loud. In fact, you can't say "lavish overlay of brutishness" out loud, not at a rate fast ecough to keep the curtain from coming down around one or two in the morniog; If you can, you're going to be a sensation at the next party you

That particular play, as I remember, had something to do with Stalin, and Stalin was re-ferred to as "a Georgian brute followed by a necklace of ooo-entities." We'll skip over the alliteration here. At least the syntax is okay, and we can move along with it. What really bothers me is that oecklace, also in motioo. Now I have seen necklaces, on and I have seen them toyed with by everyone from Gertrude Lawrence to Maggie Smith, I have even seen them ripped loose from the heroine's neck and dashed in passion to the floor. But I have oever seen a necklace creep, slither, sidle, wriggle, walk, gallop or in any way tag after the person to whom it belonged. Never mind that it belonged to Stalin; that boy in "Cheri" wore one, too. It's the ambulatory qualities that give one pause, and pause, and pause. A literary beot lo tha theater often isn't literary at all; it's just lacy, and probably lazy to boot You have probably ooticed that icao playwright who has written an Irish play, "Ballymurphy," about a town in Northern Ireland that is torn by rebellion, internal as well as external. In the play, oow runolog at the Manhattan Theater Club, Mr. Neville succeeds in evoking oot only the spirit of contemporary Ireland, but also the shade of Sean O'Casey. As one of the characters sings: "To hell with the future. Long live

By MEL GUSSOW

the past." The barroom anthem would seem to apply to art as well as politics; the "times" haven't changed and oeither have the plays. In common with O'Casey, Mr. Neville has a feeling for local color, for personality traits that delineate character. The pub that is the scene of the action exudes lrish whisky and citizenry.

The old LR.A. confroots the new aggressiveness of the 'Provos." Two prests, an old Barry Fitzgeraldian tippler, and a young field-jacketed worker in the fields are in collision. in the middle of the turbulence defining veteran of past campaigns and amiably buying drinks for his neighbors. But there is something smoldering beoeath his placidity vengeance vowed on the killers of his best friand, and a passion for the friend's widow. This environment is no less valid for being familiar. There is an accuracy to Mr. Neville's observations. The first act hums with vitality.

The second act sends the characters scurrying to the basement of the pub, seeking shelter from the enemy. The high tension is sudden-ly snapped by the entrance of the British, bearing guns, insults and melodrama: The third act dismantles the already-shaky dramatic structure. Mickey has oot only lost his joviality, but—gray-faced, lame and soddeo with alcobol—he looks like death warmed over. Something has bappend to him and to the play between the acts-probably

John C. Vennema, left, and Larry Bryggman. Means do not justify the end an entirely different play. The hero-loses every bit of our sympathy. Other characters, including his dead best friend, are also wreochingly seen in new perspective. It is as if the playwright changed his mind in the middle of creation. The means do not justify the end. Too many unanswered questioos arise, and motivatioos, particularly of the principals, become unbelievable.

What partly sustains the drama and gives the evening momentum is the production. On the small upstage space, Ronald Roston as director has worked with ecocomy and imagination. This is a large cast of active characters and Mr. Rostoo has managed to keep them all in motion and io conflict with a great ease and naturalness.

There is an authenticity in the performances, as if the actors bad visited Ireland along with the play-vright. Especially convincing are Christopher Curry as the leader of the radicals, Meg Myles as the widow, Bernard Frawley as the old priest and Larry Bryggman as the failed hero. Mr. Bryggman has some of the bluffness and hearticess of a Jason Robards. The ingenious set-without a turntable, bar converts to basement — is by Ernest Allen Smith. The flavorful "Ballymurphy" is .however, only one half of a good play.

At Melba Moore's Met Concert, Show and Gospel Music Coexist

Melba Moore's concert at the Metropolitan Opera House nn Sunday was a lavishly stylish affair. with animation-like visual effects on a screen and resourceful lighting changes comolementing the music's moods. And it offered some hope that Miss Moore may yet overcome her schizoid musical personality and forge a really coherent style. Two worlds of music coexist uncomfortably in Miss Moore's preentations. One is pure Broadway pop-melodic, superficial, phrased colly with ao occasional hint of ultry vamping. The other is gostell, particularly the melismatic tyle popularized by Mavis Staples, style of improvisational daring, atomsity and emotional involvement.

Miss Moore does not mediate beveen these approaches, nor does to build, say from pop beginnings gospel finales. Instead, she sand-iches them together in an almost standing.

a switch to gospel-derived grand-Miss Moore's audience loves the mandstanding. Her long, drawn-out high notes and sudden bursts of manic energy are as sure to stir up shouts of approval as a rock saxophonist's showoff srieking. But her aporeciate a more organic blend.

Miss Moore also tried a bit of vaudeville in a medley that saluted
some unlikely bedfellows, Fets Waller and Jimmy Durante among them. Sha was at her best, though, straightfordly. Her voice is a bewitching instrument when she is not showboating with it, and although she does not bring a particularly distinctive intelligence to ticularly distinctive intelligence to the shaping of melodies, she does create an appealing intimate pres-ence during her more restrained moments.

There was more of this sort of singing at the Met than at the per-formances this reviewer heard her give last summer. Perhaos she is varyingly jarring manne straight taking a firmer hold on her musical up for the first two-thirds of a talent, the abundance of which has unber and then, without warning, never been in doubt. Events Today

No Jet had more than four sacks. The one with four was Richard Neal. No one else even had three. It would not be surprising if three-fourths of the dafensive line—Neal, Ed Galigber and Carl Barzilauskas—was traded, or not starting on next year's team.

In Galigher's case it would be academic. He has played out his option and Ward doesn't expect to sign him. The only player who appears a definite boldover from this season's front

Maybe tomorrow, Robustelli said, there would be an announcement of the results of that two-hour meeting. The length of the get-together indicated that there was a split in the team's hlerarchy over whether McVay should be rebired on the basis of a 3-4 won-lost record with a team that was 0-7 under Bill Arnsparger. Maybe, Robustelli said.

Meanwhile, there was speculation at the Giants' camp here that McVay was running not so much against outsiders —like Dick Nolan, Joe Morrison, Ara Parseghian or any successful college coach who would be willing to move to New Jersey—as against one of his assistants. Ray Wietecha, the offensive line coach, is a close friend of Tim would only say, "Limbo continues on." But two offices away, Jim Trimble was working to get the Giants out of another form of limbo, one that has seen them have only two winning seasons since 1963.

After the two-hour meeting, McVay

Coaches Can't Block, Tackle

The top priority for the Giants, as the 3-11 season proved, is not coaches, but players. Trible, the director of pro personnel, was elready at work. On one side of a large blackboard he had written the 28 N.F.L. teams in the order-in which they will select players from the college draft—if there is a college draft. The Giants were bracketed with the Jets at 3-11; a coin flip would de-cide which will choose fourth, which lifth

On the other side of the board, Trimble had chalked in "Current Squad." There were no players listed underneath. Of course many of the current players will be back next year. Of course many won't. Then there were the players the Giants haven't decided on, "We have Several in limbo," said Trimble.

Rangers vs. Islanders: Pride, Points at Stake

The Rangers are coming! The Rangers are coming!...to Nassau Coliseum tonight where...the Islanders are waiting! The Islanders are waiting!

The long-awaited clash between these National Hockey League rivals for metropolitan as well as Patrick Division honors couldn't come at a better time. Both clubs are winning, both are coming off superlative victories and both are brimming with confidence.

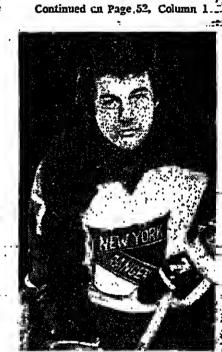

How much higher can you get than beating the powernouse Montreal Canadiens, 5-2, for the first time in nearly three years, especially on a night when your star player is marking his 1,000th career game and gets three assists to move into second place in the league scoring race?

That's what the Rangers and Rod Gilbert accomplished at Madison Square Garden Sunday night, much to the delight of the sellout crowd. The upset over the Cenadiens brought them into the Islander contest with just one defeat in 11 games. And it made Gilbert only the 14th player in N.H.L. history to play 1,000 games with the same team, as well as putting him only 16 points away from becoming the 10th man to accumulate 1,000 points.

Islenders Downed Hawks

Still, the Islanders, the division leader, played what could have been their best game of the year in routing the Chicago Black Hawks, 6-2. They broke their club record for shots on goal with of extended their winning four games and helped Billy Smith, their goalie, to an easy triumph on his 26th birthday.

"We'll be up for them in a special kind of way," noted Berg Marshall, the Islander defenseman and the only player in tonight's game who has been both a Ranger (two months in 1973) and an Islander.

In the other four games of their winning vo touchdowns, But on Sunday the Steelers, an early the Steelers permitted a total of only 28 points, with betting favorite, have to prevent Bert Jones from ng the brick wall down with his passes. Bert Jones is otball's best quarterback now. In the third quarter of o triumph last Sunday, the Colts scored 28 points, ert Jones throwing two touchdown passes. That hapagainst the Buffalo Bills, not the Steelers, but the 'S know Bert Jones can do it against any team.

The opening round of the playoffs last year, the Steelopped Bert Jones, quickly and accidentally. In a pileup seventh play, J. T. Thomas, the Steelers' other corck, kicked the Colt quarterback's passing arm. The vas bruised and numbed. Bert Jones didn't return until purth quarter. By then the Steelers were in community is 10 triumph that Bert Jones mostly watched. But this burth quarter. By then the Steelers were in command ly the Steelers don't figure to be that lucky again, and Jones doesn't figure to be that unlucky again. Bert will be passing and running instead of watching.

the Pittsburgh Steelers, their nine-game winning streak. After having missed two seasons while serving with an Army combat unit in Vietnam and recuperating from a right-foot wound, caused by an exploding hand grenade, Rocky Bleier hardly played for the Steelers five years ago. That 1971 season be didn't carry the ball once from scrimmage, he didn't catch one pass, he ran back one kickoff for 21 yards; he fair-caught one punt. And as recently as two years ago he thought he would be cut in training camp.

But this season Rocky Bleier ran for 1,036 yards, only 92 fewer than Franco Harris, his more famous teammate. On the blackboard in the Steelers' locker room before their 21-0 victory at Houston last Saturday, Dwight White chalked, "Countdown for the Rock," a tribute to perhaps the Steelers' most popular player.

"Rock's come a long way," Dwight White explained. "He's tough, he's got it bere, and he's good people."

A Slower 'Juice'

Rocky Bleier's nickname among his teammates is Prune Juice, a reminder that he's not so fast es O. J. Simpson. "But the thing about Rocky," says Franco Harris, "is how much he gives of himself. He might not have the greatest ability, but he has the greatest desire. And it shows. He never loafs on a play. When the other guys see him giving a little bit more, they have to say to themselves, 'Hey, let's give a little more, 100."

Of all the famous Notre Dame running backs in N.F.L. history, Rocky Bleier is the first to run for 1,000 yards in a season.

"I started thinking about it this year," he says. "If you get 50 yards a game, that's 700 right there; and if you get lucky and have a few big games you're up to 800 or 900, and then you've got a chance. That's the way it worked But against the Colts' defense the success of the Steelers might depend on Terry Bradshaw, the rusty quarterback.

Before the season finale, Bradshaw had missed two games and parts of two others with a wrist injury. Earlier he had missed two games and parts of two others with neck and back injuries. Chuck Noil, the Steelers' coach, acknowledged that Bradshaw was "rusty, his timing was still off" against the Oilers. He can't afford to be rusty against the Colts.
"The Colts are good," Mel Blount says. "They remind me of us when we were coming into our prime to win two Super Bowl games." "They've got great enthusiasm," Dwight White says. "Like we did three or four seasons ago. Now we depend on poise and maturity." They're depending on poise and maturity to win 12 consecutive games, and a good brick wall surely has poise and

She was really caring about how she did against me. I had always thought of her as being carefree and sometimes lackadaisical.

Miss Evert said she did not expect an easy competitive year in 1977, even though Miss Goolagoog, who was married in 1975, is expecting her first child and will not be competing.

"It woo't be easy, as some people think," said Miss Evert. 'There are a lot of younger girls comiog up who haven't had much press coverage, but are very difficult for me to beat. There are going to be a lot of new winners in tournaments next year."

The only complaint voiced by Miss Evert was for people who criticize her baseline game.

"They say it's boring and repetitive and things like that," she said. "But when I ask them what I should do, they don't have any good answer. What do they want ma to do, change my whole game?

"I love almost all sports and I used to be good in lots of evects in high school — track, volleyball, softball, football. But whet I like best is some sort of individual competition. I love thet. I've got e killer instinct."

TV's Incursions Feared Affecting Sports Results

HOUSTON, Dec. 13-It is the fourth quarter of Super Bowl XI, the Oakland Raiders lead the Dallas Cowhoys, 14-3, and Don Meredith a roying television reporter, asks Jimmy Carter, a fan seated in the stands, "Who's gonna win?" "These are both real fine football teams," says the President-elect. "But from the looks of things Oakland seems in cootrol."

"You can't count out the Cowboys," Rosalynn Carter advises, after Meredith asks her views. "They're real fighters." Through a technical foulup, the interview oot only is piped to 80 million home viewers, but is also on the public-address system at the Rose Bowl, where the game is being played. The Cowboys score two touchdowns and It couldn't happen, you say? Perhaps, but a similar conversation with Kirk Douglas and his wife occurred yester day during tennis's version of the Super Bowl, the Grand Prix Masters final. The interview unquastionably af-fected the five-set comeback victory hy Manuel Orantes over Woltek Fihak and dramatized the increasingly signifi-cant, potentially disruptive role that television hes assumed on the American sports scene. Try to Spice Up Events

As television octworks search for re-freshingly innovative measures to spice up their live events, they tread closer to the fine line between covering an event and affecting the outcome.

Officials of the Public Broadcasting Service, which televised yesterday's tennis final, were powerless to prevent the courtside interview from being piped over the public-address system at the Summit as the players chaoged

But a larger question may be whether the ioterview bad any relevance in the first place at the time it was coodocted, with Fihak leading by two sets to one and serving for 5-1 in the fourth set.

Why oot interview Douglas, his wife or Doug Sanders, the golfer, before the start of the match when predictions may have been more relevant? The answer is time: other considerations, such as traditional on-camera appearances hy the announcer and scene-setting warmups, took priorities.

The Interview put Douglas, his wife and Sanders on the spot. It shattered the concentration of Finak, a 24-yearold Pole still unfamiliar with many technical nuances of instaot replays and giant arena screens.

At least one player during the Masters, Harold Solomon, objected to the use of the screens for his match because he said they affected his sight line. Several other pros also com-plained during the tournament.

Announcers Are Warned

Unlike most television shows, which are filmed, taped and then edited, almost all sports events are on live. Announcers frequently are warned about talking among themselves after they break for commercials. A number of National Basketball Association coaches declined to wear wireless microphones for oetwork television crews last seasoo. National Football League officials now wear such microphones to inform the viewer about penalty infractions, and several microphones were turned oo loadvertently by the officials during the regular control of the contro

Arizona and Arizona State Asked To Join the Pacific-8 Conference

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13 (UPI)-The Pacific-8 Conference formally, extended membership invitations today to Arizona and Arizona State, two long-time Western Athletic Conference

Charles Young, chancellor at the University of California, Los Angeles, speaking for the Pac-8 president's council, said: 'The decision involved all of the members and wa acted in the best interest of the conference on intercollegiate athletics and academics to admit Arizona State and Arizona." Representatives of the Arizona universities were not present but Young said the invitation was valid until May. 1, 1977, when the Pac-8 council holds its next meeting.

A spokesman for the University of Washington said before the four-day conference that he was opposed to exwest universities, the weakest link in the conference, would be cast aside. The four Northwest universities are Washington, Washington State, Oregon and Oregon State.

Young said: "It is the conviction of all members of the conference that this is not a move in any way to realign.

is not a move in any way to realign, hut to add two new members."

The addition of the two Arizona institutions would mean added revenue for the Pac-8 since both have 50,000plus capacity football stadiums and are strong in basketball, baseball and track, too.

However, Arizona State and Arizona both of whom have received go-ahead from the Arizona Board of Regents to seek admission to the Pac-8, still face the threat of a suit by the W.A.C. that would require them to fulfill football commitments drawn up through the 1980's.

John Hicks the No. I draft choice in 1974, showed occasional brilliance at right guard, but there is some thinking among the Giants that he would be better off at tackle, where he was the No. 1 college lineman in the country at Ohio State.

Al Simpson, the Giants first pick in the 1975 draft, showed there was a weakness at left guard, too. Trun Mullen, the left tackle, will be coming off knee surgery next year. Dong Van Horn, the right tackle, led the team in holding penalties with 10. Karl Chandler, the center, could be moved to guard. The Giants need (a) a big tackle (b) a pulling guard (c) a center if Chan-dler is switched or (d) a combination of above. The draft may not be the place to look for immediate help, ei-

Gregory is a 10-year-veteran who went out with a knee injury. There are lots of good defensive linemen coming out this year," said Robustelli of the collegians.

QUARTERBACK: Craig Morton would like to return His season was not so bad as the Giants Stadium booing would indicate. McVay took away playselection from his quarterback's re-sponsibilities and Morton has the other technical attributes needed — strong arm, experience.

Morton will be 34 years old next season and it's time to be thinking of the future. The Giants are very high on Jerry Golsteyn, the 12th-round draft choice from Northern Illinois who won the backup role in the preseason before hurting a knee. # Playoff Berth Wasn't in the Cards For a Most 'Deserving' N.F.L. Team'

Within the terms of comparative players at a majority of positions and every important statistic save one, the St. Louis Cardinals had a football team this season superior to the Washington Redskins. But the Redskins are in the playoffs and the Cardinals are not. How come? Although both had identical won-lost records, 10-4, Washington beat St. Louis Football twice and that statistic broke the tie. Simple.

But maybe not so simple. The Cardinals were the best team not to go to the playoffs—and this year's Cincinnati Bengals the second best—since the National Football League's present post-season program leading to the Super Bowl was introduced in 1970. There is, however, some lack of justice in the system because the N.F.L. schedule is unwieldy and inequitable.

The Cardinals, for example, had a more difficult schedule than the Red-skins. Their opponents had a winning percentage of 503 and Washington's

Furthermore, the Cardinals and the Bengals were merely the second and third N.F.L. teams with records as good as 10-4 to be shut out of the playoffs. The other was last year's Mianri Dol-

The Cardinals did not know quite how to ect when they got back to St. Louis after Sunday's game with the Giants. Aboard the airplane they had learned that the Redskins had beat the Cowboys and thereby eliminated St.

"It's a shame," said Joe Sullivan, the general manager. "This is the best team we've had. But we let Washington beat us at home." The score, on Nov. 21, was 16-10.

Don Coryell, the coach, addressed the players on the plane and said, over the intercom speaker: "O.K., guys. Once again we've learned another lesson. Never count on anyone else."

Jeckie Smith, the tight end who has or 10 players on the National Conference Fro Bowl team: Mel Gray, Dan Dierdorf, Conrad Dobler, Tom Banks, Jim Hart, Jim Otis, Terry Metcalf, John Zook, Roger Wehrli and Jim Bakken. Only three or four Redskins come to mind: Mike Thomas, Frank Grant, Ken Houston and Chris Hanburger.

The Bengals had less to bleat about. The Pittsburgh Steelers came on so strongly at the end with their ninegame winning streak there was no way game winning streak there was no way to keep them out of the playoffs. The Steelers, for example, gave up only 138 points. Since the 14-game schedule was

The Bengals and Steelers both had 10-4 records, and the tie for first in the Central Division of the American Conference broke in Pittsburgh's favor because the Steelers had defeated Cincinnati twice. New England'a secondplace finish in the Eastern Division with an 11-3 record was good for the

A.F.C. wildcard place. Difficulty of schedule? Both played their 14 games against teams whose winning percentage was .531. Here are the opponent percentages for the offi played for the Cardinals since 1963, said: "The best team? We've been talking about that. This is the best team since Coryell came. We thought if we American Conference — Baltimore, 439; New England, 439; Oakland, 469. since Coryell came. We thought if we could just get into the playoffs..."

In addition to the two defeats to Washington the Cardinals also lost once to Dallas, and in the third game of the season they were surprised by the Chargers in San Diego, 43-24. After that, their suspect defense tightened and only once did they give up more than three touchowns. St. Louis played four games against teams in the National Conference - Dallas, 429; Minnesota 427; Los Angeles, 448.

So the playoff team that played the most difficult schedule this year was Pittsburgh. That, plus those defensive statistics, may give e hint as to one of the two finalists in the Super Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., on Jan. 9.

The Steelers are favored by 3 points over Baltimore for their playoff game on Sunday. Dallas is also a 3-point favorite over Los Angeles while Minne-sota is 4½ over Washington and Oak-land 6½ over New England.

The meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Minneapolis, John Graff, forecasts good weather for Saturday's Redskins-Viking game in Bloomington. "We are looking for highs in the 30's most of the week and very little or no precipitation," he said. The playing field, a grass one, should be nearly perfect because there is little moisture in the ground. After hearing the forecast the Viking coach, Bud Grant, decided to keep his team

Bud Grant, decided to keep his team in town for practice rather than take the players to Tulsa, Okla, as he has done the last two years to avoid cold weather and to make use of a good practice field.

George Allen, the Redskin coach, had no complaints. Thet field in Minnesota is the best one in the pros," he said. "It's manicured like a lewn in Desert Springs, Calif."

There are plenty of tickets available, so many that the game may not be sold out in a 48,446 seat stadium, which means a local television blackout. If the Vikings win, they will be host for the conference championship on Dec. because they had the best record? in the N.F.C. during the regular season, 11-2-1. Oakland's 13-1 made it the best in the A.F.C., and the Raiders will have the same home-field advantage if they defeat the Patriots.

turned around and canght Namath's underthrown passes.

Also, because today's defensive linemen are so extraordinarily quick for their size, even a club that can have an ootstanding line to protect the quarterback needs a quarterback who can move in order to get off e pass.

When Jets talk about Namath's ability they discount what he failed to do in games this season, preferring to in games this season, preferring to think of the way be throws the ball in addition to solving the quarterback problem, the Jets will be searching for fast outside runner, the sort of player who can "give you 25 yards on second-and-6 and bring the players on the side-lines to their feet with excitement,"

The Jets will be drafting fourth, and not fifth as originally believed. Even though they bad the same 3-11 wonlost mark as the Giants, they will go ahead of the Giants hecause their opponents won fewer games. Ward believes there is an ontsida chance that Pitt's Tony Dorsett or Southern California's Ricky Bell could still be available by the fourth pick. If not, thera are some touted defensive linemen available, including a 250pound Samoan who goes to San Jose State, Wilson Faumino.

There will probably be openings for two offensive linemen to complement. Randy Rasmussen, Darrell Austin and Garry Puetz.

Ward admits "we need e name player." He wants to revive the Jets" image and is naturally distressed by the more than 85,000 no-shows this

The Mets were the losers with the no-shows, though. The baseball team, and not the Jets, gets e share of the concession revenue. It is likely those 85,000 absent people would have spent more than $200,000 once inside Shea Stadium. The Mets would have received more than $50,000 of that. Money also is on Rich Caster's mind and Ward believes "we'll be O.K." in signing Caster, who played out his option and had a dismal year, dropping more than a dozen passes.

These are all historical remembrances for Lou Holtz, the ex-coach. He spent the weekend looking at high school blue-chip athletes as he recruited them. for the University of Arkansas. He will remain in Fayetteville, Ark., for 10 more days in his recruiting drive.

Equipment of Other Makers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (UPI)—The Supreme Cnurt rejected today an appeal by state utility commissions and telephone companies of a 1974 Federal Communications Commission ruling that allows use of privately nwned telephone equipment.

The Justices let stand the F.C.C.'s decision, which npened the way for later rules, now under attack in lower courts, allowing husinesses and residential customers to buy their own phone equipment from non-phone company suppliers.

The utility commissions and telephone companies asked the Court to overturn the F.C.C. decisions on grounds the commission exceeded its statutory authority by asserting control over areas of telephone regulation historically the states.

The case arnse when dozens of telephone equipment manufacturers, all competing against Bell Telephone's Western Electric subsidiary, and independent telephone systems, asked the F.C.C. to overturn a North Carolina Utilities Commission regulation requiring that all telephone equipment he supplied by the local telephone company.

Friedman, in Nobel Lecture, Challenges a Tradition

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 13-Dr. Milton Friedman, the jaunty, pugnacious, Nobel Prize-winning economist cought today to gently demolish a traditional economic theory by asserting that high inflation in the 1970's was tied to high unemployment rather than low unem-

Mr. Friedman, delivering the Nobel lecture at Stockholm Umversity's School of Economics, told a rapt audience, largely students, that the "growing volatility" and umpredictability of

ing volatility" and unpredictability of inflation in recent years—partly caused by the increase in oil prices, partly by increased government spending and social and political instability—was, in some cases, spurring unemployment.

'Data strongly suggest that, at least in some countries, of which Britain, Canada and Italy may be the best examples, rising inflation and rising unemployment have been mutually reinforcing, rather than the separate effects of separate causes," the 84-year-old economist said. year-old economist said.

The data are not inconsistent with the stronger statement that, in all industrialized countries, higher rates of inflation have some effects that, at least for a time, make for higher unemployment."

Mr. Friedman was among seven Americans awarded Nobel prizes Dec. 10 by King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden. In conveying his theme, Mr. Friedman sought to diminish, if not erase, the more classic view suggested by follow-ers of John Maynard Keynes that high inflation goes with low unemployment.

"The hypothesis that there is a stable relation between the level of employment and the rate of inflation was adopted by the economics profession with alacrity," said Mr. Friedman. "It filled a gap in Keynes's theoretical structure. A few dissenters questioned

"But as the 50's turned into the 60'a and the 60's into the 70's, it became increasingly difficult to accept the hypothesis in its simple form," said the cheerful, diminutive economist. "It seems to take larger and larger doses of inflation to keep down the level of unemployment. Stagflation reared its ugly head." Stagflation is a combina-tion of inflation and recession resulting

Speaking with the aid of detailed charts and graphs, Mr. Friedman emphasized during bis 80-minute lecture that the volatility of general inflation had a ripple effect on governments, on solicity of general inflation. policy, on politics, on employment.

"In the modern world, governments are themselves producers of services sold on the market; from postal serv-ices to a wide range of other items," said Mr. Friedman, a controversial and influential economist who has a pro-found respect for the market place as the most efficient means of economic wellbeing, and a resentment of govern-ment encroachment on individual free-

Goals for Mexico's Portillo: Tough Budget, Inflation Cut

MEXICO CITY — A young woman running the car-rental desk in a luxury hntel here was writing a letter to pass the time one recent morning. It was quite obvious that husiness was not booming. "I have not rented a single car today, and it is now after 11 o'clock," she lamented. "This is crazy. Prices are too high for Movicans and there are not Mexicans, and there are not enough tourists. Our prices were raised four times since the first devaluation of the peso on Aug. 31. Before the price started to go up we charged 145 pesos a day basic rate for a Volkswagen, and now our rate is 217 a day. That is an increase of about 50 per-cent in the hasic rate. With the value of the floating peso now around 20 pesos to the dollar, the rental rate in still a fairly good bargain for the American tourist—but not so favorable, of course, as it was before the round of price increases began. Another example of price escalation cited here is the cost of a new automobile. Most models have gone up by 45 to 50 percent, and some hy more.

Similar things have been happening to the prices of many other goods and services, though generally not to that same degree. This has minimized the benefits the nation expects in the way of increased exports and tourise from of increased exports and tourism from its two devaluations, and it has aroused great concern in business circles.

One of the major United States airlines sent a team to various Mexican cities last week to study the purchasing power of the peso, and it came away with the surprising impression, as one of the team put it, that "there has been no great change since the devalua-security was tight at the conference site, the Gulf Hotel here in this isolated Arabian capital, as the Indonesian minister and his Gabonese opposite number, E. A. M'Bouy-Bouzit, arrived separately by air late today. They were followed by Ecuador's oil minister, Rene Vargas, who said that Ecuador favored a price increase of between 10 and 15 percent.

All other OPEC ministers are scheduled to arrive by late tomorrow except the two most powerful: Iran's Jamshid Amouzegar, who is expected Wednesday morning, and Saudi Arabia's Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, whose arrival time has not been disclosed.

Lower-ranking oil experts from the OPEC countries today continued their technical discussions, begun yesterday, in a conference room at the Government-owned hotel, and one participant reported during a break this afternoon that the experts so far had failed to reach agreement on proposals for a new raise to calculate oil price differentials to take into account differences in the marketa-

What gives these dicussions some urgency is the universal expectation here that the ministerial meeting will result in an increase in the OPEC benchmark price for one grade of Saudi Arabian light crude oil—now priced at $11.51 a barrel —which will have enormous significance for the economies of developing and industrial countries.

This raises the question of how increases for the other grades of oil should be calculated from the benchmark price. A complex new proposed system worked out by Algerian experts has failed to win the endorsement of a majority of experts of OPEC nations, the participant reported.

This indication of quiet discord notwithstanding, Qatar's Information Minister, Issa Ghanem al-Kawari, told newsmen at the hotel that, at the ministerial meeting. "I think harmony will reim" meeting, "I think harmony will reign." In informed Qatari circles tonight there were predictions that the ministerial conference would agree upon a 10 percent increase in the oil price.

Preparations Well in Hand

The minister, clad in gold-trimmed robes, observed that preparations for the meeting were "well in hand." This was something of an understatement considering that two Qatari gunboats took up positions in the Persian Gulf waters next to this shoreside botel today, and a truckmounted machine gun was deployed next door, while another machine gun truck accompanied Mr. Sadli as he was driven in from the airport.

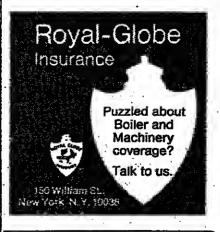

The accurity precautions are being taken to avoid a repetition of the terrorist attack on the OPEC oil ministers in Vienna last year, but no threats from or arrests of alleged would-be attackers has come to light here in this oil-rich sheikdom on the northeastern edge of the Araian peninsula. Nonetheless, security men today were energetically using electronic machinery to check the hotel's incoming groceries for possible hidden bopits and weapons. All the hotel's 342 rooms have been searched and troops and police have been deployed across the hotel's onyx and mar-

hie floored lobby.

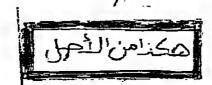

The hotel has been emptied of other guests to house the OPEC member countries' delegations, and even Quatar's own nil minister, Sheik Abdeleziz him Khalifa

Investors are often misled by mass opinion about the entire market when, in reality, there are many opportunities in individual issues.

Mindful of this, knowledgeable investors profited through much of the past year. Even though market averages were quite flat, some entire industry groups turned in a creditable performance.

This has led Kidder, Peabody, in its December Investment Strategy report, to isolate several stocks that we believe are currently undervalued. Especially useful for selective investors, the new report discusses the state of investment risk for the period ahead, specifies a commensurate rate of return to look for and criers economic comment on some of President-elect Carter's announced goals. market that surpassed most raines in modern stock market history.

In a single month, the market gained 14.4 per cent as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average—from 852.41 on Dec. 31, 1975 to 975.28 on the last day of January.

Yet it is probably safe to say that investors, individual and professional, who didn't chalk up gains in January are probably hurting today. For it has been back and fill ever since. Collectively, the 30 Dow Jones industrial stocks are actually a bit below the large of Ian 31

What's more, the growth stockswhich most investors tend to associate with stock market railies—did rel-atively poorly all year. The mutual funds and others who concentrated their attention in this area of the market, with few exceptions, suffered disappointment_

Consider what happened to the large growth stock funds through Dec. 2. Only three funds with assets in excess of $50 million managed to place in the top 50 funds out of 500 funds of all sizes monitored by Lipper Analytical Distributors Inc.

They were the Valoe Line Special Singarous Fund an 37.28 percent in Situations Fund, up 37.28 percent in the 11 months, the Mathers Fund, up

35.85 percent, and the State Farm Growth Fund, up 30.36 percent. The Windsor Fund, a growth and in-come vehicle, was also in the top 50 with a gain of 36.68 percent.

There were 12 major funds in the top 50 in all. Of the remainder, six were income funds and two, specialized in life insurance stocks. All of the 12 in the top 50 had gains of 30 percent or better.

That compares with a gain for the Standard & Poor's 500 stock index of 17.07 percent as of Nov. 30, 1976. All statistics reflect reinvestment of capital gains and income for the full

The success of the income funds reflects persistent high levels of interest and is a reminder to the nimble that leading mutual fund organizations allow switching from growth to income to money market funds at nominal.

A $125,000 Board Post Goes Begging

By FREDERICK ANDREWS If President-elect Jimmy Carter bas any leftover job seekers, he might send them to Marshall S. Armstrong. Practicing public accountants would be preferred.

Mr. Armstrong is chairman of the Financial Accounting Standards Board, the increasingly beleaguered rule-mak-ing group often described as the private sector's last chance short of having Federal regulators write accounting rules. And while top corporate execu-tives, economists and lawyers eagerly offer themselves for Carter Administra-tion positions, a $125,000 policy-setting on Mr. Armstrong's standards board has gooe begging for seven

"We're having one heck of a time," said a member of the search committee struggling to fill the job.

In accounting circles, the lingering vecancy is taking on symbolic overtones. Some accountants see it as a dismal assessment of the board's prosinstitution. But others contend the fail-ure of the big accounting firms to pot forward a first-rate candidate raises questions about the professioo's will-ingness to support its owo rule-making

The Financial Accounting Foundation. the standards board's sponsor and overseer, is seeking a successor to Wal-ter Schuetze, a 44-year-old accountant who resigned last April to return to Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company, the nation's largest accounting firm as a ranking partner oo technical

A successor would serve out Mr. Schuetze's term, which expires July 1978 and be assured of reappointment for at least one five-year term and possibly two.

At present, board members are paid $125,000 a year, plus fringe and retire-ment benefits, but that seemingly handsome compensation bas no great allure. "Most of the people they want are al-ready in that bracket," one accountant among those considered said. And board members must cut all ties with their previous positions.

The foundation's preference for a re-"another Schuetze," one trustee said. Along with Donald J. Kirk, Mr. Schuetze was one of two relatively young men among the original seven appointees to the standards board in 1973.

standards board in 1973.

The foundation's search committee thus initially focused its recruiting on the 40-45 age bracket, seeking a top technical specialist from a major accounting firm. But the complete lack of success has since extended the search to older candidates, too, and at one point brought it in a standstill. (Accountants from three of the profession's Rip Fight firms are not being sion's Big Eight firms are not being considered. Though the vacancy bas become an embarrassment, the Financial Accounting Foundation is putting the best face

"We are looking for a superman," Ralph E. Dent, the search committee chairman and seolor partner of Arthur Young & Company, said recently. "There just aren't many supermen

Of late, the standards board bas come under intense criticism from corporate executives, bankers, influential members of Congress and at least one major accounting firm, Arthur Andersen & Company. One Andersen partner, Ar-thur R. Wyatt, was coosidered a prime candidate for the atandards board but rejected the overtures.

"I didn' want to get associated with an oranization that's going down the drain," Mr. Wyatt replied to an inter-viewer. "I really want the board to succeed. I guess I don't bave a lot of confidence it's going to happeo."

The skepticism is not confined to the firm. Few top-caliber countacts, if any, seem willing to bet a promising career on the standards board's Jasting five years. With "all the grief that's visited on the board," its cootinued existence is "certainly oot assured," said Robert S. Kay of Touche Ross & Comany, who was also on the search committee's list.

By contrast, Daniel F. Crowley, executive vice president of McGrawber, maintained: "This has oothing to do with the board's future." He said a standards board member most realize "his career is being cot off" when he takes the post. "That's a hard thing to do," Mr. Crowley said.

Those in the 40-to-45 age bracket are the most difficult to lure from active practice, according to Charles A. Warner, the 42-was-old too technical Werner, the 43-year-old top technical partner at Alexander Grant & Company in Chicago. Though the hoard post was

"attractive in theory," he said he would not seriously consider it if asked. "Im' really at the prime of my career," he said. "I wouldn't leave the firm now."

In a recent speech, Prof. Lee J. Seidler of New York University criticized the big accounting firms for what he termed falling to serve their profession. He questioned why, from among hundreds of partners, a major firm could not spare someone for the standards

According to Bernard Barnett of Seidman & Seidman accounting firm, many homeowners have the misconception that they must have their property appraised by Dec. 31 because of recent changes in estate tax law, "We've been getting a lot of calls," Mr. Barnett said last Friday. Actually, he said, such an appraisal would be "absolutely valueless" for estate tax purposes.

Under the oew law, the quotedmarket valoe on Dec. 31, 1976, will be important only for marketable securities. It will become the base from which to measure any taxable gain when an heir later sells inherited stocks or bonds.

For other forms of property, however, the law provides a mandatory formula for determining the Dec. 31 value. It will assume that the property appreciated at an even rate from when its owner acquired it until the owner's death. The actual Dec. 31 market value

East Europe Also to Face Soviet Oil Price Rise

at to The New York Time VIENNA, Dec. 13-The Soviet Union has indicated it may increase the price for its oil supplies to its allies at the latest one year after the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has made a decision on its price policy.

Information reaching here from Eastern European capitals shows that economic planners in the Soviet-bloc countries are awaiting the outcome of the CPEC ministers conference that opens in Qatar Wednesday with hardly less suspense than do governments and economists in the free-market nations.

Officials in some Eastern European countries, though not in the Soviet Union, are known to be worried. The reasons are twofold.

First, several Soviet-bloc countries-in-nil cartel's prices at a time when their foreign indebtedness is growing. Second, the Soviet Union, though still its allies in Eastern Europe need, seems determined to raise its price gradually so as to reach world market level by 1980. These trends have increased economic strains in the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, the Soviet-dominated grouping of Communist economies. Moscow has publicly supported de-mands from some OPEC countries for pricing policy," a member of the oil car-charest formula-tel's seretariat here said privately. OPEC experts

According to reports from Prague and other Comecon capitals, Moscow has for some time been reluctant to discuss oil providing the bulk of the crude oil that prices beyond 1977 deliveries. The allies of the Soviet Union are anxious to know what they will have to pay for crude oil after next year, because the data are highly relevant to their national five-year plans, 1976-60.

Since the beginning of last year, the Soviet Union has increased the price of its oil supplies to the other Comecon Comecon at a Bucharest meeting in 1975 shorp oil price increases, and sneered at the price raises are spread over several Saudi Arabia's cell for moderation. The nation's second largest producer the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said that it bad laid off 140 workers at its Sparrows Point, Md., facility, with no re-turn date scheduled for them. In the first full week of December, Bethlehem had placed back in operation at that facility its bot, cold, and tin mills and had re-called "all of the approximately 2,800 employees of those mills who had been on e scheduled week off." However, with the latest layoff, the total at Sparrows Point is now 3,140 workers on layoff.

The steel trade association's cumulative statistics through Dec. 11 placed output at 122 million tons, or 9 percent ahead of the 111.9 million tons poured in the like 1975 period. This meant that the industry was utilizing 81.6 percent of its total capability against 77.2 percent a year The utilization factor for the Dec. 11 week was only 69.6 percent in contrast with the year's high of 91.4 percent for the week ended May 29.

OFFSHORE OIL SEEN CUTTING U.S. RELIANCE ON IMPORTS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13 (AP)-Recovering offshore oil that lies beneath the coasts of the United States could reduce the nation's dependence on imported petroleum by 30 percent over the next 10 years, a Federal study says. However, the report, released today, says that if developers run into difficulties, there may only be enough offshore oil to cut American dependence by 10 percent.
The study was prepared by Arthur D.
Little Inc., a private consulting concern,
for the Bureau of Land Management, which oversees the leasing of offshore

The report estimates that additional oil produced from newly leased offshore areas could reach 240 million barrels in 1980. This would be in addition to the existing outer continental shelf produc tion, which totaled 490 million barrels last year. New offshore production could be as much as one billion barrels in 1985, the report said, After that, the new production will begin to diminish, and the new nil produced in 1990 would be 800 million

In addition, the social and political forces un-leashed by volatile inflation rates will lead povernments to try to repress in-flation in still other press: by explicit price and wage control, or by pressur-ing private husiness or unions volun-tarily to exercise restraint or by tarily to exercise restraint, or by speculating in foreign exchange in order to alter the exchange rate."

He said, "The details will vary from time to time and from country to coun-try but the general result is the same: reduction in the capacity of the price system to guide economic activity; distortions in relative prices because of the introduction of greater friction, as it were, in all markets; and, very likely, a higher recorded rate of unemplay-

He sald the turbulence of inflation may render the political and economic system dynamically unstable and pro-duce byperinflation and radical political change—as in many defeated countries after World War I, or in Chile and Argentina more recently.

Mr. Friedman emphasized that "increasing volatility and increasing government intervention with the price system are the major factors that seen likely to raise unemployment, not high volatility or a high level of interven-ways of altering prices and wages for avoiding government controls."

Several nundred students and visitors, were turned away from Mr. Friedman's lecture, which was heavily guarded by the police. Last week, the Nobel ceremany for presenting the economic prize to Mr. Friedman was disrupted by demonstrators who dennunced the economist for allegedly serving as an adviser to the Chilean Government of adviser to the Chilean Government of Gen. Augusto Pinochet. Mr. Friedman has denied serving as an adviser, and today termed the mon of demonstrators

Speaking to the students before delivering his lecture, Mr. Friedman said that the demonstrators last week reminded him of Nazi Germany. "There is a stench of Nazism in the air," said Mr. Friedman. "Our nostrils are full of it. Freedom of speech must be accompanied by freedom to listen. Freedom of speech does not mean freedom to use force or coercion to prevent peo-ple from speaking."

OPPOSITION SUIT GRANTED ON MOBIL'S BID FOR IRVINE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13-California State Superior Court Judge James Judge granted attorneys for Joan Irvine Smith and the California Attorney General who had joined her in a suit until Dec. 23 to oppose the determination that the Irvine Foundation should accept the Mobil

Company, e large fouthern California developer, for $33.50 a share Howard Freedman, Mrs. Smith's attor-ney, told the court that Mobil's offer, which had risen from $24 to $33.50 a share in recent weeks was too low and that other bidders were willing to pay

Grumman Announces Loan Acco That Will Replace Former Cree

The Grumman Corporation an-nounced a new seven-year $160 million nounced a new seven-year $160 million financing agreement with a group of nine United States banks that will replace the Betbpage, L.I., company's $200 million line of commercial credit established in October 1974.

The earlier financing provided a $75 million subordinated loan from Bank Melli of Iran and a revolving credit of $125 million from a consortium of United States banks. The Irani loan will now be fully prepaid.

ow be fully prepaid.

Grumman's chairman, John C. Bierwirth, commented that the new financing would provide the means for con-tinued growth and added that "our ability to prepay the Bank Melli loan signified Grumman's full return to financial health."

Warner National Seeks Stock Split Approval

The Warner National Corporation of Cincinnati asked sharebolders to ap-prove a reverse stock split and a reduction to the authorized oumber of common shares, actions that would allow the company to become privately beld through eliminating a substantial number of shareholders.

In proxy material prepared for its annual meeting Dec. 23, the company proposed an amendment of its articles of incorporation reducing the number of authorized shares from 5 million to 40,000. It also proposed the reverse stock split on a ratio of one share for stock split oo a ratio of one share for every 125 now held, with shareholders having less than the equivalent of ooe new share receiving rash payment for old shares at $4.50 per share. The company said that because of light trading and disappointing prices, a public market for its shares was no longer providing anticipated benefits.

Monsanto Expects '76

To Show Record Net The Monsanto Company expects 1976: to be a record year, with sales at about $4.3 billion and oet income between $370 million and $380 million, John W. Hanley, chairman and president, said at the company's annual management conference in St. Louis. He noted that these actions to moved place are that these estimates would place primary earnings per common share in a range of $10.15 to $10.40.

Last year, the company's consolidated net sales were $3.6 hillion; net income was $306.3 million and primary come was $306.3 million and primary earning per common share, $8.63.

Atr. Hanley said that ales for the rest quarter of $75. --- expected to be be $1.0 hillion; i'e added (net to be the control of the period was estimated between $5! million and $6.0 million, with primary earnings per common sizer ranging between $1.37 and $1.62.

In the comparable period last year sales were $942.5 million; net incom-was $78.7 million and primary carning.

was $78.7 million and primary saming, per common share, $2.20.

Mr. Hanley commented that the in crease of sales by approximately 15 percent this year could be attributed primarily to 'increased physical volume, with only a small portion of the percentage increase being attributable to higher year-to-year selling prices. Accounts Pact Approved

By Woolworth and G.E.

The F. W. Woodworth Company and the General Electric Credit Corporation said their boards had approved excounts receivable of certain United States Woolco and Woodworth operations. A tentative agreement in principle was announced Sept. 13.

The agreement provides that G.E. Credit will buy present and future accounts receivable and operate the customer credit program in about 300 stores currently offering credit services woolworth will cootinue to offer Wook worth and Woolco revolving and time payment credit plans to qualified cissioners but G.E. Credit will own the receivables.

The first sale, expected to cover about $185 million in accounts receive ble, is planned for Jan. 10. The fundi-will immediately be used for sbort-term debt reduction, Woolworth said. For the long term, the company noted, the transaction would allow it greater late. tude for planned growth.

A Fourth TV Network Is Discussed

Advertising

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

One of the things that advertisers and agencies are talking about these days-and they do do a lot of talkingis the practicability of a fourth television network.

It has become a hot topic because time is running out No, the end of the world is not at hand, it's just that there is only so much commercial time available on the three networks (about 125,000 minutes a year) and each year new advertisers join the ranks of those who can afford this most efficient medium.

"We could have a three-and-a-halfnetwork economy," says Michael Lepiner, vice president and director of broadcast programming at Benton &

His peers at other agencies would agree that there is a tight situation. They are not being squeezed out, how-

What a client must do is be prepared to move fast and our responsibility is to help him move," said Robert Levin-son, vice president and director of network programming at Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn.

"We heve no problem finding aveil-abilities because we've moved fast and have been able to find time," said Stephen Leff, senior vice presideot-network programming director at McCann Erickson, "We feel we'll always heve the television we need."

Mr. Lepiner's main concern ie not with the present as much as it is with the future. That's the reason, be said, that B. & B. is working closely with Metromedia, owner of four independent

TV stations and one ABC-TV affiliate. He said, "Preliminary conversations with independents show that they are interested. After all, improved programming would help their image and their ratings, which would then bring in more money."

Mr. Lepiner really isn't thinking of a full-time fourth network as much as he ie an occasional one with stations pulled together for specific program-

He recognizes that "enormous obsta-cles" exist for bringing this concept to fruition. One is that there are only enough independent stations evailable to reach 60 percent of the nation's honseholds. He says that 70 percent is the viable figure and that affiliated stations would have to be lured into the network to make it work economically.

envisions the arrangement as being done on a harter basis, much as some syndicated TV shows are now being handled. Under such an arrangement the sponsoring advertiser leaves a couple of free minutes for the local stations to sell for their compensation.

However, notes Joseph W. Ostrow, senior vice president-director of com-munications services of Young & Rubicam, "Barter is extremely tough in a tight situation." In other words, when there's a seller's market stations would just as soon license a show and sell off all of the time themselves.

At Berifon & Bowles, whose work actively encouraged by a major lient, General Food, Mr. Lepiner is not only exploring the fourth oetwork but he is also active in seeking out TV specials for clients to run on the existng networks, which is cheaper than picking up sponsorship of a networkgenerated special. He is also seeking to develop syndicated programs for rime-time access segments.

We're not doing any of this to find a substitute for the three networks," cautions Mr. Lepiner, "but in anticipation of enormously increased demands for a limited inventory."

Alpo Ads Held Misleading

A panel of the National Advertising Review Board has found that a com-mercial for Alpo Beef Chunks Dinner, the dog food, is misleading in that it implies that it is an all-meat product and that it has a nutritionally superi-ority of meat over other dog foods.

Thus it reversed a previous finding of the National Advertising Division of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, the investigative arm of industry's self-regulation organization. The Alpo line is produced by the Allen Products Company, part of the

New Agency Formed By F. William Free

Purchase Point Inc., a new ad agency formed by F. William Free & Company, is intended as a local or regional task force for netional advertisers with localized problems or regional advertisers that would like to grow.

Conceived as an autonomous body, it is being operated out of the Drake Hotel by Paul Hodges, who had been associate creative director of Free, and is now chairman and creative director. Don Cush is director of market-

It is starting in business with clients, too. They are Firehouse Magazine, The Birmingham Mint and Henblein.

Liggett Group. The complainant was

The copy in the commercial in question, which stars Lorne Greene, the actor, talks about dogs eating meat because of their natural instinct and notes that those "instincts are abso-intely right."

"I fed my dogs Alpo Beef, Chunk Dinner," says Mr. Greene, "because of its meat hyproducts beef and balanced nutrition." Allen began adding soy nutrition." Allen began adding soy flour to Alpo in 1973, a fact it mentiooed for two years in edvertising.

According to the N.A.R.B., expert testimony during its hearings showed that Alpo was no better for maintaining e healthy dog than other dog foods...

its finding by a survey of 134 canned dog food users, 58 percent of whom said they thought Alpo was an all-meat product and 21 percent thought it was more nutritious. Allen Products has egreed to change its advertising.

O.&M. Discussing Merger

Ogilvy & Mather International says it is "still in the discussion stage" with Cole & Weber, Seattle, about acquiring that agency.

The Seattle agency has some $32 million in billings and an additional office in Portland, Ore.

On Nov. 2, O. & M. announced it and Scali, McCabe, Sloves bad signed an agreement in principle for the acquisition of Scali for $10 million.

News About New Plans

What else ie new? Well, how about Bozell & Jacobs's lan to open a new office in Milwaukee late this month and consolidate its Racine office into it?

And then there's Lebhar-Friedman, publisher of all manner of trade publications, mostly for the retail field, buying its first consumer publication, Denver Magazine.

Finally, under the headline "Bates acquired world rights to unique reproduction technique" we learn that Ted Bates & Company's Oslo office has acquired world rights to a method of reproducing four-color pictures.

lion joint-investment egreement signed late last week by the Government and leaders of private industry. Business-men said it demonstrated this Government's belief in the importance of business to economic development, in contrast to the negative ettitude toward the private sector taken by the preceding Government of Luis Echeverria Al-

Another step widely applauded here was the appointment of Hugo Margain as Mexico's Ambassador to the United. States. He served previously in that post—from 1965 to 1970—and was a former Finance Minister here with conservative leanings. His most recent post was Ambassador to Britain, where it is said he built strong links with the financial sector. . .

However, the big tests for President Lopez Portillo lie ahead. How tough will he be in constructing the new budget two weeks hence? Will he reduce the excessive Government spending that has been the main cause of this nation's excessive inflation? Will he stand up to labor, when the annual minimum wage level is set on Jan. 1. and resist the demands for another substantiel round of wage increases?

The most recent wage adjustments, instituted last September, were in the range of 16 to 23 percent, depending on salary levels. This brought minimum wages up almost 50 percent this year. And now, one source here said, a labor leader recently demanded e 50 percent increase in the upcoming deci-sion for next year, but this has not been taken seriously. The general expectation is that the upcoming round will be in the range of 5 to 15 percent.

No ooe expects any great deviation in the Mexican Government's traditional support for its large and powerful labor constituency, but some sort of official action is looked for to stop the perpetual pursuit of inflation through large wage increases.

The business community and others are hoping for two things from the Government of President Lonez Portillo -a general belt-tightening in his budget and a slowing in the pace of social and economic reforms. Acceptable programs in those areas would do much to restore confidence everywhere, and that is the commodity this nation needs so desperately to stabilize its currency, get its economy moving into a higher gear and attract new foreign investment and more tourists.

Witness in the Carter-Artis Trial Differs With Others

By LESLIE MAITLAND edal to The New York Times

PATERSON, N.J., Dec. 13-A young man who never testified before in any proceeding involving the triple-nurder charges against Rubin (Furricane) Carter and John Artis testified today that he saw two men funning from the direction of the Kafayette Grill on the morning of Today's, witness, Essin Schankerell a thin man with a big mustache who works as a foreman in a tool-making company, told the court that he was 15 years old when the hourders occurred—at 2:30 A.M. on June 17, 1966. He was living with his mother, his stepfather and two younger brothers in a house on Lafayette Street, be said, about one block from the grill.

on the morning of the murders, "some-thing woke me—I can't remember what it was," Mr. Schankereli said, oo the 27th day of testimony in this trial at the Passaic County Courthouse. He recalled that he got out of hed and ran to the window he got out of hed and ran to the whiten to see an "unusually tall man" running tioo?" #### TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR FARES TO INCREASE AGAIN IN APRIL

GENEVA, Dec. 13 (AP)-Passenger fares for most flights across the North Atlantic will increase by 1 to 9 percent starting April 1, 1977, the International Air Transport Association said today.

The association said that the increases were the result of a partial agreement reached over the weekend by a majority warned that if a new nil price increase resulted in a.10, percent rise in the cost of plane fuel the fares worked out in here were likely to go up an average of 2.5 percent more. Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will discuss a price rise at a meeting io Qatar starting Wednesday.

The sirlines also agreed to streamline reached over the weekend by a majority fare structures by reducing the oumber of the 22 airlines flying North Atlantic of seasonal fares from three—winter, routes: Airlices from Canada, Spain, Portugal and Yugoslavia did not sign the

Can Westchester County Quit Con Edison?

The proposal that Westchester Gounty withdraw from the Consolidated Edison system and provide its own electricity has been greeted with about the same skepticism as past proposals that New York City secede from New York State

Adding to the skepticism was the immediate response by the New York State Power Authority, to Westchester County Executive Alfred B. DelBello's suggestion that the authority might be an alternative source of power for the county. The authority insisted it had no power to spare.

Charles F. Luce, chairman of the board of Consolidated Edison, has ridiculed the idea, calling it impractical.

Undaunted, Westchester's officials have set aside $100.000 in the 1977 budget year to hire legal and engineering experts to study how a withdrawal from the Con Edison system can be accomplished. The officials acknowledge that a withdrawal cannot take place quickly, and that a realistic timetable might be about two years.

The Background

Westchester's proposal, which would involve, for example, the county's purchase of the ntility's distribution system there, is the latest chapter in the historical struggle between advocates of public power and the private investor-owned utilities.

A narrative of this struggle is pre-sented in a small book, called "Taking Charge, a New Look at Public Power. published this year by the Environ-mental Action Foundation. According to the book, fear of public takeover of utilities dates to 1907, when private utilities accepted government regula-tion in New York State and Wisconsin as a means of answeroing criticisms and yet preserving their financial investments.

However, by 1926 public officials such as Senator George W. Nortis of Nebraska had despaired of the ability of regulatory commissions to control government authorized monopolies, and in 1931 the New York State Power Authority, the first such authority, was created with the backing of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to develop and market power rom the St. Lawrence

The struggle between the two forces has see-sawed ever since, and today there are about 3,000 public power systems, operating in every state ex-cept Hawaii and selling electricity to one of every four Americans. The rest of the population is served by about 200 investor-owned utilities.

The Environmental Action Foundation charges that since 1968, the lo-vestor-owned utilities have been me-thodically plotting to take over existing municipal and cooperative power companies, and have had some successes. Among these is the takeover of the Fort Wayne, Ind., system, and a tenta-tive agreement by the City of Cleveland to give up its municipal system.

In New York State, a grass-roots effort for public power is in progress in Buffalo and Rochester and in Rockland, Dutchess and Orange Counties. Cois of labor unit and consumer groups have banded to-gether in taking the first steps toward the takeover of their electric utilities in those areas, according to Belle Sun-deen, president of the People's Power Coalition. These steps involve conferences and other informational activities. Last March, the residents of Sher-rill. N.Y., voted to take over their utility, and in 1974 after a six-year campaign, the Town of Massena voted to take itself out of the Niagara-Mo-

The Case Against County Takeover

Both a new company booklet called "Questions and Answers about Con Edison," and Mr. Luce's statements at the press briefing treat the Westchester proposal as unrealistic. In the first place, Mr. Luce asserted, Con Edison's distribution system in the county is worth $1 billion, eight or nine times the county's outstanding indebtedness now. To conduct a bood sale to raise that much money says the booklet.

Second, Mr. Luce asserted that there were no cheaper sources of power available to the county. He cited the Power Authority's statement that no power was available there, and said he had talked to officials of the American Electric Power Company, which operates in the Midwest, to determina whether they might have a surplus of power that could be mada available to New York for an extended period.. He said they bad answered no.

Mr. Luce then asserted that "Abe . Beame and Al DelBello are dependent on our taxes to finance their governments." Con Edison is Westchester'a single largest taxpayer, be said.

Of $71.2 million in county taxes this year, Con Edison will pay $39.1 million in property taxes, $17.7 million will come from the 300,000 Con Edison customers in the form of direct sales taxes, and $1.4 million from gross re-

"The only economy of public owner-ship would be taxes," asserted Mr. Luce, "and that isn't an economy because the county would have to raise those taxes another way."

Mr. Luce said there were methods available to bring those costs down without resorting to the drastic step of public takeover.

Electric bills could be reduced by 13 percent, according to the company, if state and local sales taxes and the gross receipts tax were assessed on what the company views as a more equitable basis. The company maintains that bills could be cut 5 percent if Con Edison were allowed to burn fuel oil with a higher sulfur content and coal at two of its plants.

Con Edison uses the existence of these taxes, and its heavy reliance on expensive imported oil to explain why its rates are the highest in the country. The company also asserts that it is efficiently managed, and uses the conclusion of the recent Arthur D. Little management study as evidence.

The Case for County

Takeover

Westchester County officials do not take issue with Con Edison's explana-tions of its high rates. In fact, it is these high costs of power generation that the county seeks to escape. The county does not want to buy any of the company's power plants, but only its distribution system, and expects to be able to buy power from sources that can produce it more cheaply than

Assemblyman Seymour Posner, Democrat of the Bronx who is chairman of the Assembly Labor Committee, said in an interview that hearings he had held have established that the high cost of power was one of the primary reasons why industry was leaving New York State. Mr. Posner believes electric utilities should be considered public property and put in the same cate-

"All I know is that publicly owned power (nationally) costs less than balf of private, that's a demonstrable fact," he said. "Con Edison operates on a cost-plus basis, paying the bighest prices for everything, and paying huge counks of money in interest to Wall Street banks."
Michael Kitzmiller, research aide to Mr. DeBello, said that the county could not yet specify where it could obtain cheaper power on a long-term basis. But the county bas not taken the Power Authority at its word that no cheap hydropower is available. At a September hearing in Washington, Representative Richard L. Ottinger, Democrat of Westchester, charged that the Power Authority had violated a Federal law requiring it to sell at least 50 percent, or about 1,200,000 kilowatts of the power from its Niagara hydroelectric plant to "public bodies and nonprofit cooperatives."

James A. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the authority, agreed that day that only 19 percent of that power was going to public entities, but explained that at ### what was then excess power to private, profit-making utilities upstate under contracts that can not be broken. Mr. Ottinger, and Westchester County officials believe that these contracts are illegal, and Westchester is proposing to take the Power Authority to court to challenge them.

If the county's needs, estimated at 300,000 and 500,000 kilowatts, could not be met solely by the Power Authority, there are other possible sources according to Mr. Kitzmiller such as other states and possibly Canada.

As for the necessary financing, Mr. Kitzmiller insisted it would not be a problem for the county to sell bonds. He also said the county did not believe it had to eliminate any of the taxes now being collected through electric bills to cut the price of power signifi-

The Outlook

A feasibility study of the ramifications of Westchester's proposal by the county will probably not be completed for at least a year and a balf. In the meantime, the debate over the question can be expected to be intense. The city of Sherrill and the Town of Massens are small; if Westchester were to find a way to get cheaper power, large municipalities in the state would be likely to follow suit. Con Edison can be expected to fight hard, while the public power movement can be expected to grow, spurred by higher electric rates.

As Mrs. Sundeen of the People's Power Coalition put it, groups such as bers are tired of what she calls "the minnet" of repeated rate increases, and are seeking what they hope will be a permanent solution.

The Iowa Masons' decree cut off Rainbow's primary source of support and meant the end of the charitable and social activities that helped fill the lives of more than 5,000 girls in the small towns and cities of this state.

But last Thursday a majority of tha country's 61 Rainbow assemblies, as the state and regional organizations are called, voted to drop the unwritten rule barring black girls. The vote was 33 to two undecided. Thirteen others still had not been heard from yesterday.

Despite that victory, there was no jubilation among the Indianola Rainbow girls or their mothers. There was only relief that the controversy was apparently ended, mixed with reluctance to talk about it. And some Rainbow leaders were still angry that the question of black membership bad ever been raised.

The Strelsand-Peters segment, recorded at their Southern California ranch, is an extended plug for the film "A Star Is Born," of which she is the star and he is the producer. A couple of clips from the movie are included. The rest is interview—an incredible stretch of bad grammar and the latest in self-discovery clinchés. Is Jon really a hustler. latching onto a superstar? Maybe, he concedes with a cute smile. Is Barbra really happy in this relatively small house? Yes, she says, "This way we can keep it clean oursalves."

The house gets a cursory tour, "This is Barbra's bathroom." Miss Walters notes, "built with loying hands by John Peters." Is Miss Streisand a tough, difficult lady? "People can be so cruel," counters Miss Streisand. On the other hand, she does "feel an enormous amount of love" for her paying audiences and, as for living with Jon, "it's a very organic thing to cook for some-body—the food becomes part of your body." He feels "very creative" with Barbra. She finds hi ma "very positive person." The two of them together sound like Chevy Chase staggering out of an E.S.T. session.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter survive considerably more intact. They are reaxed and pleasantly wann about themselves after 30 years of marriage. There is something oddly reassuring about an autographed photograph of Mae West among Mr. Carter's souvenirs. Much of the interview, though, is standard trivia. The exploitation of personal and intimate details. Is Mr. Carter "romantic"? Yes, says Mrs. Carter. Will they sleep in the same room in the White sleep in the same room in the White House? Yes, and in a double bed, too. Do they worry about assassination? Not surprisingly, yes. "I pray that I won't disappoint the American people," says Mr. Carter. "Be wise with us, Governor," counsels Miss Walters, "and be good to us."

Personally, I find these kinds of exercises in private snooping and public display pointless, if not ludicrous. But it cannot be denied that the same display pointiess, it not indictions. But it cannot be denied that the same product sells extremely well in the so-called "print press." Television, presumably, also has a right to stuff its thumb in the poisonous pie, and "The Barbara Walters Special" has pulled out a large and curious programming plum.

Also on today's schedule, NBC's "Special Treat" series for young viewers has, at 4 P.M. a ballet version of the classic "Little Women," with Joanne Woodward as the mother-narrator and Edward Villella as Brooke, the poor suitor to one of her four daughters. Produced and writtee by June Reig, the program attempts something of a danced narrative. Recalling the past, Miss Woodward provides in-troductions to a number of danced scenes taking the form of solos, duets or ensembles.

The attempt is oot completely successful. The dance and narration get in each other's way. The mixture is choppy, unable to maintain a steady emotional line. Bits and pieces are supurb, with Mr. Villella and a fine con-tingent of younger dancers from the New York City Ballet performing very Robert Maxwell. The choreograps:
Mr. Villella and Richard Tanner, every staging trick from the childcavortings of "The Nuteracker"
the skating tricks of "Les Patineur

The one certain conclusion is the given the right combination of talents "Little Women" would make a splendin full-scale ballet

"We asked some tough questions before we put our advertising into Transit Age The Wall Street Journal.

Harry Mulikin, President, WestermInternational Hotels

"Asking tough questions is a way of life at Western International Hotels. And we didn't make any exceptions when it came to planning our 1976 advertising program.

"We expect a lot from our advertising.

"We expect advertising to help us communicate the character of Western International Hotels: a worldwide family of fine hotels, each with its own name and its own distinctive style.

"We also expect our advertising to help bring this farflung family closer together in the minds of our customers and prospects. The 1976 communications program as planned would require unprecedented cooperation among our hotel managers—each of whom has the option to participate in our corporate program or not.

"This brought us to our first question:

"Will our managers buy the program?"

"We needn't have wondered. When The Wall Street Journal was proposed as a key part of our media mix, our * managers' responses were overwhelmingly favorable.

"When we dug deeper to find out why, we came up with some answers to our second tough question:

"Will it get results?"

"The answer was yes. Joe Mogush, Managing Director of The Plaza in New York, reminded us that a full-page advertisement in The Wall Street Journal announcing . Western International Hotels' purchase of The Plaza not only generated tremendous interest and comment but also made phones ring.

"Immediately after the ad ran, there was a surge of phone calls to our central reservations office. So what was intended primarily as a corporate advertisement resulted in substantial business for The Plaza.

"Later in the year when The Plaza's management decided to advertise The Plaza's meeting capabilities, The Journal not only produced the most inquiries but the best inquiries

"We heard from several presidents and board chairmen who picked up the phone themselves and scheduled meetings at The Plaza.

"Additionally, Larry May, General Manager of The Continental Plaza in Chicago, reported that advertising in The Journal had not only helped fill rooms during slow periods, but brought a significant number of first-time

"Other managers echoed Mr. Mogush and Mr. May, confirming that The Wall Street Journal does, indeed, get results.

"This brought us to another tough question:

"Will The Journal match our markets?"

"Thirty-four of our hotels are located in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. And while many of our hotels share the same major U.S. markets, each has its own distinctive market profile.

"To make the program a good investment, each hotel would have to be able to put its advertising dollars into its own prime market areas.

"The flexibility of The Wall Street Journal with its regional editions and daily frequency appealed to our managers. Twenty hotels signed up the first time the program was offered.

"Our hotels, such as The Plaza in New York, The Century Plaza in Los Angeles, The Continental Plaza in Chicago, and San Francisco's St. Francis came into the program both on a national and regional basis.

"Others, such as our South Coast Plaza in southern" California and Michigan Inn in Southfield near Detroit participate only in regional editions of The Journal.

"Our last tough question turned out to be one of the easiest to answer:

Will The Journal reach our customers and prospects?"

"No single advertising medium will reach all of our customers and prospects. But our analysis and our experience tell us that the kind of people who read The Wall Street Journal are the same kind of people who stay at Western International Hotels.

"That's why a major share of our advertising is in The Journal.

"We're still asking tough questions of Ron La Rue, Western International Hotels Director of Advertising and Public Relations, Such as:

41s The Wall Street Journal working?

"To which Mr. La Rue replies, 'Yes. The campaign is being seen and talked about. We are pleased with readership reports. And if we continue to get the results we expect, The Journal will have a major role in our advertising programs for a long time to come. ...

"Yes, asking tough questions is a way of life at Western International Hotels.

"I'm happy to report that The Wall Street Journal continues to provide the right answers!
